Springtime in January

Everything was springtime for a few days in Sikeston as temperatures shot into the seventies. All of the regular springtime activities could be seen somewhere in town, including baseball and yard cleaning, and for a while it was shirtsleeve weather downtown. It was great too for this pair of builders working on a new house in Sikeston. Clyde Russell, left, of Scott City and Everett Russell of Sikeston were making great time putting up ceiling beams in the sunshine. The last time January made this sort of scene was in 1960 when the mean temperature was the same as this month's average of 39.6 degrees. Tuesday's high of 72 degrees pushed up this month's average high to 49.6, just beating the 1960 average high of 46.3 degrees. (Daily Standard photo)

Death bill vote today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The Missouri House gave preliminary approval today to a bill restoring the death penalty but not before adding a 13th category to the crimes that will command a mandatory death sentence.

"We have, I think, a mandate from the people," said Rep. Walter Meyer, D-Bellefontaine Neighbors, in urging the members to approve the measure, which must still receive final consideration before going to the Senate.

Tentative approval came on a 122-27 vote as the opposing force to the bill remained as small as it has been during the last two years.

Rep. Vernon King, D-Excelsior Springs, captured more than three-fourths of the 163 votes in the House to add the 13th category that would make conviction of a murder by means of bombing subject to the death sentence.

Since debate began on the bill, sponsored by Rep. Bob Griffin, D-Cameron, Tuesday, several antideath sentence amendments have been offered, but the most votes garnered by any of them has been 39.

Many of the arguments against the measure, similar to one passed by the House in 1973 and again in 1974 but dying in the Senate, were the same as in past years. "It is wrong, strongly wrong, to legalize murder in any fashion," said Rep. J. B. "Jet" Banks, D-St. Louis, in opposition to the measure. "I am vitally concerned with law and order, but if we put law and order before justice, we really have nothing."

Banks, along with other opponents, calimed that only the poor, black and oppressed would be the victims of the bill, which calls for a mandatory death sentence upon conviction of murder outined in 11 specific categories and on the third conviction for selling heroin.

"Capital punishment is as fundamentally wrong as a cure for crime as charity is as a cure for poverty," he charged.

During consideration of the measure Wednesday, House Majority Floor Leader Kenneth Rothman attempted to remove the section of the bill requiring that the death sentence be given in certain cases, but that effort was overwhelmingly turned back.

"We can't solve the problems in our society by using the methods these animals use," Rothman said in support of his proposal to give those convicted of the crimes in the bill mandatory life sentences under which they would have to serve a minimum of 30 years with no possibility of probation, parole or temporary release of any kind.

"None of us has been ordained by our God to decide that another human being is so worthless now or at any time in the future that he should be exterminated," he said.

The bill as recommended by the Judiciary Committee called for mandatory death for 11 categories of murder, but a St. Louis Democrat, who has opposed the death penalty in the past, gained acceptance of a 12th category and announced that he would support the measure.

"I am convinced the vote I take today will be the right vote," said Rep. Russell Goward, whose amendment added to the list of those subject to death persons convicted of selling heroin for the third time.

"(The sale of heroin) goes to the very root of the causes of crime in our metropolitan areas," he said in supporting the measure. "These persons inflict crimes on our society possibly more horrible than those inflicted during World War II on minorities."

Contending that heroin dealers do more harm than persons in any of the other capital crime categories, Goward said he hoped that if the bill was finally approved, it could have the effect of running heroin dealers out of the state.

A bill requiring death in seven instances was sent to the entire Senate for consideration Wednesday.

Health project funds approved

MALDEN — Two proposals for funding of health programs have been approved by the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Planning Council, according to Philip Shelton, executive director of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission.

Shelton said the planning council unanimously approved the application for operating funds for the year beginning July 1 and running through June 30, 1976 for a countywide health center in Stoddard County.

The proposal complies with the BootheelComprehensive Health Council's regional plan concerning community public health and relates to the Home Health Care Services Plan in providing medical, educational and personal care services, Shelton said.

The second proposal accepted for funding was submitted by the Southeast Missouri Association of Public Health Administrators for funds to establish a SeMo Regional Homemaker Home Health Aid Program.

Shelton said this proposal complies with the council's regional plan concerning home health care and will establish a homemaker program to work in conjunction with the SeMo Regional Home Health Agency.

Both proposals had previously been reviewed by the council's review and comment committee, which recommended approval to the council.

Shelton said the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Plan, adopted by the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council in December 1973 is now in the process of being revised to include alternatives to all comprehensive health segments allowing for rapid changes taking place in the health delivery system.

The next meeting of the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council will be at 7 p.m. Feb. 18 at the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission office in Malden Industrial Park.

Enthusiasts want better facilities

Tennis Anyone?

Are the lack of facilities hurting the game of tennis in Sikeston? Some people think so, and they're trying to see that something is done to correct the situation.

They say there are only a few tennis courts in the city and many of those are in poor condition.

Judy Bowman, a spokeswoman for the informal group of five tennis buffs who use the municipal courts at Central Park, says the group has talked with park board members, but to little avail.

Tennis is growing so fast here that the city's facilities are not adequate, Mrs. Bowman said.

There are four courts at Central Park and four more to be available this spring at the new recreation complex near the airport. There are two more courts at high school and two at the Middle School. Space has been set aside for four more courts at the recreation complex, but no date has been set for their construction.

A head count taken by the group at Central Park showed on July 24 there were 40 people waiting to play and on Aug. 17 there were 56. These do not include those who drove by and left because of the crowd. The head count was part of a fact sheet compiled by the group.

The group says it estimates there are 2,000 tennis players in Sikeston, a 75 per cent increase over the last two years. In three to five years, one-third of the town's population will be playing tennis, the group members say.

The popularity of the sport is evident: stores have added more tennis equipment and clothing and national advertising campaigns are stressing tennis. Television networks carry as much tennis as baseball, the group says.

Group members say tennis is a family sport which can be played by men and women of all ages and economic levels. Girls can play the sport as-well as boys, the group says.

In addition, the sport can be played year-around if the players wear warm clothing.

Both houses to hear ERA

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.(AP) — The Equal Rights Amendment, for the first ...me since its inception three years ago, will be given a hearing in both the Missouri House and Senate.

Committees of both chambers passed out the resolution Wednesday afternoon—the Senate's Constitutional Amendments Committee on a 6-1 vote, and the House Jduiciary Committee on a 12-5 decision with one member voting present.

Last year ERA was killed on a preliminary Senate calendar in the last month of the session, and it was bottled up in the House Constitutional Amendments Committee. In 1973, the measure lost 81-70 in the House and failed to get out of a Senate committee.

"I have serious strong reservations about the real and underlying forces which seem to be propelling or encouraging ratification of this amendment," said Sen. Don Manford, chairman of the amendment committee.

The Kansas City Democrat voted in favor of the resolution, however, and the lone dissenting vote came from Sen.

Hearnes documents under examination

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Federal authorities investigating the financial affairs of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes have started their examination of 34 boxes of papers Hearnes donated to the University of Missouri.

Two assistant U.S. attorneys from Kansas City and four Internal Revenue Service agents started the task Wednesday of sifting through private and official documents the ex-governor accumulated from 1963-73.

The U.S. attorney's office subpoenaed the papers but agreed to inspect them at the Western Historical Society at the university.

The subpoena was issued in connection with a lengthy investigation by the federal grand jury, which initially probed alleged corruption during the Hearnes administration and more recently turned its attention to the former governor's personal finances. The U.S. attorney's office said the jury is looking into possible income tax violations.

Another subpoena has directed the American National Bank of St. Joseph to produce records concerning a Jan. 4, 1974, deposit of $7,884.59 to the account of Enright and Wessel Advertising, Inc., of St. Joseph. The firm performed public relations work for the Hearnes campaign in 1968.

Burlison named to defense

WASHINGTON, D. C. — U.S. Representative Bill D. Burlison, just elected to his fourth term in the U.S. Congress, has been assigned to the Defense Subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations.

This Committee of nine Democrats and three Republicans will be charged with making the initial determination on funding of the proposed $100 billion Defense Appropriations Bill for Fiscal Year 1976.

The Subcommittee is chaired y the chairman of the Full Committee on Appropriations, George Mahon of Texas.

Burlison in the 94th Congress moves up eight positions on the Full Committee on Appropriations. The committee ratio for the 94th Congress is 37 Democrats and 18 Republicans.

Burlison retains his position as fourth-ranking Democrat on the Subcommittee on Agriculture, which has appropriations oversight of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration.

Thieves hit grocery and car

Thieves broke into the McKnight-Keaton Grocery Co. and an automobile at the high school, according to police.

Police said the break-in at the McKnight-Keaton office, 516 Prosperity, occurred about 9 p.m. Wednesday.

The office was ransacked, but the only thing missing were 18 pair of safety gloves valued at $24.75 and a silver flashlilght worth $5.

A tape player was taken from a car owned by Karen Pobst, Route Four, between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Wednesday while she was in school. The car was parked in the parking lot near the field house when the theft occurred.

Filing deadline is Feb. 27

HOWARDVILLE — Filing deadline for candidates in the annual New Madrid County R-1 enlarged school district election set for April 1 is 6 p.m., Feb. 27.

Two directors will be elected for three-year terms to the board of education. Candidates must file their declarations with Markus Koch, secretary of the board, Sikeston Route Three.

Terms expiring are those of Hoyte Butler of Parma and Metts Hawkins of Portageville Route One.

Blanton approved

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.(AP)—The Missouri Senate today confirmed Gov. Christopher S. Bond's appointments to the new state Elections Commission, which is designed to enforce the state's new Campaign Practices Act.

The nemes were approved earlier today at a meeting of the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee after hearing testimony from Sikeston attorney David Blanton.

Five names were considered by the committee earlier this month, but Blanton was out of the country at that time.

The other members of the commission are Edmond A. Bohl Jr., a former Republican representative from Harrisonville; Samuel B. Murphy, former Democratic state senator who lives in St. Louis County; D. W. Gilmore, a former Kansas City Democratic state senator.; and Robert Karsch, a university of Missouri-Columbia professor.

Threat of suit lifted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Missouri House members have begun putting their affairs in order for the inaugeration of a new system for paying their office expenses with the threat of a state Supreme Court suit against it lifted.

Sen. A. Clifford Jones had threatened the court action last week based on grounds that the administration of the plan as initially suggested would amount to granting each House member extra compensation for his legislative work in violation of the state constitution.

But the Brentwood Republican said Wedensday changes made earlier this week in the administrative portion of the plan now appear to bring it in line with state law.

Had those changes not been made, however, he said he would have carried out his threat.

"They thought I was kidding," Jones said of some of his fellow lawmakers, "but let them ask the two men who were served with notice."

He said both Gov. Christopher S. Bond and State Treasurer James I. Spainhower had been served late last week with the notice that they would be sued since they would have ultimately been responsible for the release of any funds under the plan. A spokesman in the governor's office confirmed that such notice had been received and forwarded to the attorney general's office.

The new system for payment of office expenses was approved Jan. 20, calling for each of the 163 House members to receive a monthly allotment of $400.

That money will be used to cover costs of general office supplies and postage—items previously bought in bulk by the House and distributed to its members—and telephone expenses, miscellaneous costs and the salary of a home-district secretary, which had been covered out of the general House fund as incurred by each member.

But the revised system as originally outlined called for each member to receive the monthly allotment before incurring the expenses.

Legal research by a member of the House staff this week suggested administering the system that way could be found illegal if there were a court test because "a flat $400 payment before incurment of expenses could be considered additional compensation."

In changing the administration of the system, the House Accounts Committee put use of the monthly allotment on a voucher basis. The reports, which will be public record, will be filed at the end of the month supported by copies of expense receipts and then paid by the state. The representatives will not receive cash as such.

Each representative will be able to carry over any unspent money from month to month, but unspent funds in each account at the end of the fiscal year will lapse to the state.

Rape case under advisement

BLOOMFIELD — The case against David Daniels, 17, of Bell City, charged with the forcible rape of a 13-year-old girl, was taken under advisement by Judge Jimmie Trammell in Magistrate Court today.

Defense attorneys maintained that Daniels was not 17 years old at the time of the crime and therefore was subject to the juvenile code. The crime occurred Dec. 12, 1974 at halftime during a Bell City High School basketball game. The time of the crime was estimated at between 7:30 and 8 p.m. Daniels would have been 17 years old at 9:02 p.m. the same day.

Area vets to receive $43,000

Residents of Scott County who are veterans of World War I, World War II or the Korean Conflict will be on the receiving end of some extra cash this year.

The money, approximately $43,000, will go to some 570 in the local area who have maintained their GI insurance policies in force.

It represents their share of a $335,600,000 distribution of dividends that will be made to policyholders by the Veterans Administration.

The total is $31,800,000 more than was paid out last year. The record amount is attributed principally to the fact that the insurance trust funds have been earning more because of the higher interest rates and therefore have more money available for dividends.

In Scott County, where the latest count shows a total of 2,680 World War and Korean veterans, only about 21 per cent of them will be getting checks, the figures indicate. They are the ones who held onto their policies.

Vietnam vets, because of the kind of insurance they have, are not eligible at this time.

The bulk of the money, over $307 million of it, will go to the 3,720,000 World War II veterans who hold National Service Life Insurance policies. Another $22 million will be divided among 130,000 World War I veterans. The remainder will go to 566,000 who were in the Korean engagement and have Veterans Special Life Insurance.

Of the 570 in the local area who will be getting dividend checks, the amounts they receive will depend upon the type of insurance carried, the size of the policy, the time it has been in force and the age of the insured.

On the average, the VA states, veterans of the first World War will get $169, those who were in the second World War, $83, and Korean vets, $11.

Distribution of the $43,000 that will be going to Scott County veterans will be made throughout the year on the anniversary dates of the individual policies.

The payments will reach them automatically, without application. There is no need to contact the VA regarding them.

Death bill vote today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The Missouri House gave preliminary approval today to a bill restoring the death penalty but not before adding a 13th category to the crimes that will command a mandatory death sentence.

"We have, I think, a mandate from the people," said Rep. Walter Meyer, D-Bellefontaine Neighbors, in urging the members to approve the measure, which must still receive final consideration before going to the Senate.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.(AP)—The Missouri Senate today confirmed Gov. Christopher S. Bond's appointments to the new state Elections Commission, which is designed to enforce the state's new Campaign Practices Act.

The nemes were approved earlier today at a meeting of the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee after hearing testimony from Sikeston attorney David Blanton.

Threat of suit lifted

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Missouri House members have begun putting their affairs in order for the inaugeration of a new system for paying their office expenses with the threat of a state Supreme Court suit against it lifted.

Sen. A. Clifford Jones had threatened the court action last week based on grounds that the administration of the plan as initially suggested would amount to granting each House member extra compensation for his legislative work in violation of the state constitution.

But the Brentwood Republican said Wedensday changes made earlier this week in the administrative portion of the plan now appear to bring it in line with state law.

A spokesman in the governor's office confirmed that such notice had been received and forwarded to the attorney general's office.

The new system for payment of office expenses was approved Jan. 20, calling for each of the 163 House members to receive a monthly allotment of $400.

That money will be used to cover costs of general office supplies and postage—items previously bought in bulk by the House and distributed to its members—and telephone expenses, miscellaneous costs and the salary of a home-district secretary, which had been covered out of the general House fund as incurred by each member.

But the revised system as originally outlined called for each member to receive the monthly allotment before incurring the expenses.

Each representative will be able to carry over any unspent money from month to month, but unspent funds in each account at the end of the fiscal year will lapse to the state.

Rape case under advisement

BLOOMFIELD — The case against David Daniels, 17, of Bell City, charged with the forcible rape of a 13-year-old girl, was taken under advisement by Judge Jimmie Trammell in Magistrate Court today.

Defense attorneys maintained that Daniels was not 17 years old at the time of the crime and therefore was subject to the juvenile code. The crime occurred Dec. 12, 1974 at halftime during a Bell City High School basketball game. The time of the crime was estimated at between 7:30 and 8 p.m. Daniels would have been 17 years old at 9:02 p.m. the same day.

Area vets to receive $43,000

Residents of Scott County who are veterans of World War I, World War II or the Korean Conflict will be on the receiving end of some extra cash this year.

The money, approximately $43,000, will go to some 570 in the local area who have maintained their GI insurance policies in force.

It represents their share of a $335,600,000 distribution of dividends that will be made to policyholders by the Veterans Administration.

The total is $31,800,000 more than was paid out last year. The record amount is attributed principally to the fact that the insurance trust funds have been earning more because of the higher interest rates and therefore have more money available for dividends.

In Scott County, where the latest count shows a total of 2,680 World War and Korean veterans, only about 21 per cent of them will be getting checks, the figures indicate. They are the ones who held onto their policies.

Vietnam vets, because of the kind of insurance they have, are not eligible at this time.

The bulk of the money, over $307 million of it, will go to the 3,720,000 World War II veterans who hold National Service Life Insurance policies. Another $22 million will be divided among 130,000 World War I veterans. The remainder will go to 566,000 who were in the Korean engagement and have Veterans Special Life Insurance.

Of the 570 in the local area who will be getting dividend checks, the amounts they receive will depend upon the type of insurance carried, the size of the policy, the time it has been in force and the age of the insured.

On the average, the VA states, veterans of the first World War will get $169, those who were in the second World War, $83, and Korean vets, $11.

Distribution of the $43,000 that will be going to Scott County veterans will be made throughout the year on the anniversary dates of the individual policies.

The payments will reach them automatically, without application. There is no need to contact the VA regarding them.

HELP FROM ROGUES

As suggested by Ernest Tricomi, editor of Packascope-USA magazine, it should be easy to devise a circular scale that compares a taxpayer's own contribution against the total federal budget.When a federal spending program is introduced, the taxpayer simply aligns the amount of his previous year's federal income tax and the cost of the program. He then reads through a window on the scale how much the program will cost him personally.

For example, suppose a congressman introduces legislation to save wild horses from extinction at a cost of $105 million, By twirling the dial of his "Ratio of Government's Unreasonable & Excessive Spending" (ROGUES), the taxpayers learns that the program will cost him $7.13 in taxes.

Such a figure is far more comprehensible to the average person than $105 million, says Tricomi. Bringing the "stupendosities" casually tossed about in Washington down to human size might help to achieve firmer control over the politicians by those who make it all possible — the taxpayers.

A BULL MARKET IN GOATS

Speaking of the cost of living, inflation has even hit the goat market.

At a recent sale in Ithaca, N.Y., a female goat (doe) sold for $2,250. Goats from as far away as California sold for an average price of $760.

According to the goat department editor of Countryside & SmallStock Journal, published in Waterloo, Wis., the top price at a similar sale last year was $1,725, and the year before that the highest bid was $1,300.

The prices reflect not only the erosion of the dollar, but the "surge of interest in the little dairy animals," claims the journal.

More people are moving to the country, it observes. They're interested in healthful food, in doing for themselves, in beating inflation. When they find out how fascinating goats are and how great goat milk tastes, they're sold.

"That can only mean," says Countryside, "our favorite animals will move out of the comic strips and toward the respect she deserves from a hungry world."

TIME FOR A NEW LOOK

Many well-intentioned lawmakers and others have sought to impose confiscatory gun control measures on all law-abiding citizens in the belief that such measures would automatically solve the problem of violent crimes. Such measures would not solve the problem. But the worst part of this preoccupation with gun controls is that it diverts attention from the real factors involved in effective crime prevention.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has listed factors affecing crime rates in its publication, "Uniform Crime Reports." They included such things as density and size of a community's population and the metropolitan area of which it is a part; composition of the population with reference to age, sex and race; economic status and mores of the population; educational, recreational and religious characteristics and effective strength of the police force. There are many other things listed, but nowhere is there mention in the FBI crime factor list of the impact of firearms controls on crime. There is good reason for this. The causes of crime and its control are too complex to respond to such a simplistic cure.

It is time for a new look and a fresh approach to crime control. Many of the most intractable problems of crime control have social, cultural, educational and economic roots. Trial and punishment for criminal action should be sure and reasonably swift. Particular penalties should be attached to use of a firearm in the commission of a crime. Too many serious and repeated offenders roam the streets. Free on bail pending trial or after serving minimal sentences, they are at liberty to strike again -- and they often do. There are many steps which can be taken to control crime, but taking guns away from the law-abiding citizen isn't one of them. Those who say it is are like ostriches sticking their heads in the sand to avoid confronting the more difficult or frightening aspects of life.

THEY GIVETH, THEY TAKETH AWAY

Our national officials are planning to give us all a rebate on our 1974 income taxes, which could mean several hundred dollars to some folks.

That's good.

Not so good however is another plan that would increase the Social Security tax on everyone, both the employee and the employer. If it passes, we'll all be paying more than we're going to save with the rebate.

The government giveth, and the government taketh away, and there's usually more of the latter than of the former.

WHOSE BELT NEEDS TIGHTENING?

During this time of recession and unemployment, there is much talk of needed belt tightening, but the only cry that has gone up so far is that the people should tighten their belts for the government.

In the past the American people have responded magnanimously with the sweat of their toil, but maybe the time has come when government should start doing some belt tightening for the people.

Average federal pay exceeds private pay by 46 per cent.

Whose belt needs tightening?

The federal government for the last two years has overpaid federal employes by more than a billion dollars per year, according to its own much discredited "Federal pay comparability survey."

Whose belt needs tightening?

The federal government in 1973 took $3.97 out of every $10 in income, leaving the recipient with only $6.03.

Two years earlier, it took $3.75, leaving the recipient with $6.25.

Whose belt needs tightening?

Remember it's your taxes they're spending.

NO CHANCE

Most everybody was found guilty but Richard Nixon in the Watergate trial. Our unelected President Ford didn't give the United States Senate a chance to try and prove Nixon guilty, letting him, maybe advising him to resign, and then giving him a full pardon for whatever he had done or might have done. Poor old Richard, he got so sick from what he had done, he went to the hospital and the doctors wouldn't let him tell whether he had lied, his friends had lied, or why he made all those tapes in the first place. We of this generation can always remember the Watergate, just like a lot of us still remember Teapot Dome. But it was a disdemeanor compared to the late crime of the administration. And if you or we have been convicted in either crime, our sentence would never have been reduced nor any parole given.

SPY STORIES

Since there is so much talk about the "spying" being done by our Central Intelligence Agency inside and outside of America, we ran across an interesting item in another newspaper about spying in the biblical times.

It seems that ever since men began dividing themselves into states and nations, there have been spies. Those with the most effective intelligence systems usually survived.

Moses, you remember, sent men "to spy out" the Land of Canaan. The instruction he gave them might have come right out of the CIA.

"See the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many ... and what the land is they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; and what cities they be that they dwell in; whether in tents or strongholds...and what the land is, whether it be fat or lean."

No doubt there were those who protested to Moses that it wasn't cricket to slip up on the Canaanites and find out what they were doing, with the aim of moving in and taking it over.

Of the twelve spies sent out to case the land, only Joshua and Caleb reported it was goodland and the Children of Israel could easily take it.

As we recall, they had some sort of investigation. The upshot was that the anti-spy crowd won out, and the Children of Israel were a generation late in claiming the Promised Land.

If you want to read spy stories, forget the CIA. Just get out your Old Testament. It's full of them.

SELLER'S MARKET NOW A BUYER'S MARKET

According to a world economic report, there are early warning signs of our economic problems that are very important but you will see very little statistical information published on them. We are referring to such thing as order cancellations or stretch-outs, and shrinking delivery times. Six months ago, suppliers were telling buyers that they couldn't deliver goods from periods ranging anywhere from 90 days to a year. Now, buyers can get immediate delivery. This is true with a whole range of products. Some months ago as delivery times lengthened, buyers panicked and ordered additional quantities for inventory, just so they wouldn't get stuck without critical materials. We at The Globe increased our inventory of newsprint. The same reasoning was followed by purchasing agents thoughout the economy. Thus, their inventory buying accelerated shortages while, at the same time, creating an artificial boom.

Once a company's requirements are well satisfied, there is no reason to keep filling up the warehouse, particularly if sales are slowing down. So it seems we have now arrived at the point where corporate inventories of nearly every product are in excess of rquirements. As a result, purchasing agents everywhere have just stopped buying. They are also cancelling orders or requesting delayed shipments. The shoe is now on the other foot. What was a seller's market only a few months ago is now becoming a buyer's mrket.

If you listen to the other side of the situation, you will find suppliers crying the blues over order stretch-outs. At the same time, they will quickly assure you they can provide delivery of most products almost immediately. Furthermore, plants that were once running overtime, yet could not deliver goods in less than 90 days , are now beginning to shut down because there are no orders. The softness in orders and stretch-outs pervades practically all levels of economic activity. None of this has yet been reflected in the published economic statistics. These order stretch-outs, coupled with other factors, indicate a readjustment and declining economy.

One economist in Chicago pointed out something that we think makes a lot of sense. He has noticed over the years that the consumer is much smarter than the businessman. The consumer sees trouble on the horizon earlier than the average businessman, and cuts his spending plans accordingly. On the other hand, business proceeds its merry way, increasing production and inventories, until it's toolate. Until there is a marked improvement in consume attitudes, there is little reason to expect any significant rebound in sales of such key durable goods as automobiles or appliances.

XXX

FREE ENTERPRISE

At a time when consumerism threatens to "protect" Americans right into a corner of strict regulation of everything we manufacture or use, it is refreshing to find the spirit of free enterprise effectively expressed by the winner of a high school journalism contest.

Miss Cathy Bowen, winner of the annual Editorial Award competition sponsored jointly by the University of Georgia and the Georgia Power Company, portrayed the vitality and benefits the free enterprise system has bestowed upon its "child," the United States. Written in the first person, Miss Bowen's perceptive editorial makes its point very forcefully. For example, an excerpt reads, "As her (America's) industry grew, I stood by to insure each American of his freedom to produce the quantity and quality of any product he chose. I stood by to see that my child created a sense of competition, the greatest force in any enterprise. As a result of this competition, the consumer profits, because the producer strives to keep his prices lower than his competitors Under my guidance and guardianship, my child -- the United States- will continue to grow and mature and prosper for many years to come."

A lot of wisdom is reflected in the editorial of this high school senior. As she stresses, free enterprise IS the backbone of the U.S. If we ever forget that fact and fail to safeguard our competitive system, our affluence, might and freedoms will crumble and mix with the dust of the great civilizations that have passed before us into the limbo of history.

COLORFUL STORY

When President Eisenhower and Winston Churchill took up painting, oils and easels were a common sight in Washington. This was not so when Mr. Eisenhower returned from Europe after the war to serve as Chief of Staff of the army. Subjects were hard to come by then, too. One day the general went to the Washington waterfront, according to Major General Wilton B. Persons, and offered a picturesque fisherman ten dollars if he would let him paint him.

The fisherman hesitated.

"What's the matter?" General Eisenhower asked, "isn't it enough?"

THE FIRST WIRETAP
By Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON--A great deal has been written about the man who invented the telephone, but very little has been said about the first man to tap one. As everyone in law enforcement knows, the telephone is absolutely worthless unless you can find out what the people on each end of the line are saying.

The man who gets full credit for having tapped the first telephone line anywhere in the world is J. Edgar Soosa, a young agent in the Justice Department during President Ulysses S. Grant's Administration.

Soosa was not only a dedicated law enforcement officer but a whiz at electronics. He believed that when fighting crime, domestic and foreign, you had to use every weapon at your disposal. It was thanks to Soosa's determination and skill that anyone can now tap a telephone in this country without fear of detection or retribution.

This is what happened: In 1875 Ulysses S. Grant was finishing out his term of office. Grant was hoping to run again in 1876 but he was worried about his political enemies whom he believed were everywhere. One in particular was an Alexander Graham Bell, a Scotsman who worked in Boston. Someone at the White House had told President Grant that Bell was working for the election of Rutherford B. Hayes. (The aide actually had confused Alexander Graham Bell with a Boston politician named Arnold Choate Bell, who was a big Hayes supporter.)

President Grant called in J. Edgar Soosa and told him, "This is very confidential but I want you to go to Boston and find out what Alexander Graham Bell is up to.

"When you get the information, I want you to report directly to me. Use any method you have to as long as you get results. If you get caught I'll see that you get an executive pardon."

Soosa, who was used to following orders, immediately proceeded to Boston. He discovered that Alexander Graham Bell was working with deaf children which obviously was a cover for his real job, which was to get Rutherford Hayes elected President.

Bell lived in a boarding house with an assistant named Thomas A. Watson. Soosa rented a room in the same house under the name of Zimbalist.

When both Bell and Watson went out one day, Soosa broke into their rooms. He discovered a series of wires going from one room to another. They were connected with strange looking speakers. His curiosity was aroused. Why were Bell and Watson communicating by these wires when their rooms were only 100 feet apart? It was obvious that they were afraid that if they were in the same room together they might be overheard.

Soosa reported his findings back to President Grant who became terribly perturbed. "We have to know what they're saying to each other," he said.

Soosa agreed. "I've been thinking about it. If I could attach a wire to their wire and have a speaker in my room, I could record everything they say."

"Then do it," Grant thundered.

"There's only one problem," Soosa said. "It may be illegal. I'm not sure you can attach a wire to somebody else's wire and listen in."

"Dammit," said the irritated President. "The national security of the United States is at stake. I want to know what they're plotting."

Soosa went back to Boston and attached a wire to Bell and Watson's. All during winter he sat with earphones on his head, but the line was dead. Then finally on the morning of March 10, 1876, Soosa's patience was rewarded. Over the line he heard Bell shout, "Mr. Watson, come here I want you."

Soosa immediately took the tape to Washington, D.C., and, while Grant sat drinking a whisky, the agent played back the immortal words.

Grant smiled. "Just as I suspected. They were out to get me. Mr. Soosa, you have made a great contribution to your country. In years to come every President will owe you a debt of gratitude and say, 'Thank God for Soosa, who made the first wiretap possible.' Without you, sir, the telephone wouldn't be worth a damn."

Instant Strangulation:
Arabs Building Own Oil Carrier Fleets
To Control Deliveries Around the World

NEW YORK--Global oil geopolitics was a vague beyond-the-horizon shadow hovering over the small groups of suddenly jobless angry men chattering around the skeletal hulk of a half-built tanker in what once was the bristling Brooklyn Navy Yard.

And in a broadcasting studio across the river in Manhattan, waterfront union leaders, a Longshoremen's chief and a Teamsters union president angrily told me and two city officials that revamping of a few West Side piers could put 4,000 dock-wallopers and 18,000 other workers in the support pipeline back to work. But Longshoremen's executive vice president Johnny Bowers and Teamsters local 707 chief Louis Alimena were told there is no money because there is no tenant even for one pier.

Everybody sought a solution. For the moment there is none. The Arab and Venezuelan oil exporters have made the problem insoluble.

These oil exporters, the sheiks, the emirs, the Arab presidents and kings, and the Venezuelan neo-socialists are building their own fleets of oil tankers. And dry carriers too.

Soon they will be able to ship as well as sell their own oil. Soon they will be able to tell us to import dry cargo as well in their own freighters.

These aren't "boats" as we landside people say. The craft are huge tankers--running between 200,000 to gargantuan 500,000 tons each. They can carry enough oil to fuel a small nation for weeks. And million-tonners are on the drawing board.

Virtually all the Arab states are building these fleets, according to one of the world's leading oil authorities, Walter J. Levy--an expert respected in Arab as well as Western nations. Orders for big tankers have been placed by Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the Emirates, Iraq and Algeria, as well as by Venezuela.

Already Saudi Arabia has a 40 per cent preference regulation. That is, 40 per cent of what you buy there you must ship in their own bottoms and tankers.

What point then in building tankers here or anywhere in American shipyards? There is no guaranteed cargo. The costs are heavy. There may be another boycott. The Arabs and Venezuelans will be able to pressure shippers into using their newly acquired fleets.

So the work has been stopped on the big tanker in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The 1,800 men laid off, and the 1,000 who were discharged last month, mostly are from the big city's minorities--blacks and Puerto Ricans. Where do they find bread now?

As for the jobless longshoremen whose work is drying up because there are fewer and fewer tenants for the world-famed Manhattan West Side piers, they can exist as long as the shippers are willing to pay a Guaranteed Annual Income for the unemployed--a jobless subsidy costing the shippers $40 million annually in this harbor alone. How long can that go on?

President Ford vetoed the National Transportation Security Act of 1974 which would have guaranteed that 20 per cent (later 30 per cent) of imports into the U.S. would have to be carried in American vessels. So there isn't much hope.

It will all go to the Arabs (with smaller intake by the Venezuelans) such as the Saudis. The latter have recently organized the Samarco Co., in partnership with American firms. It has arranged for early delivery of three huge oil tankers--the first "weighing" 270,000 tons. The others will bulk up to 140,000 tons dead weight. In all they soon will have tankers totaling 600,000 tons. And deep-sea freighters for dry cargo. That's for starters.

Soon they will be training Saudis as seamen, ship officers and masters. On land, there will be a management cadre. Then they'll be able to undercut the Western world. That's how the Russians drove the Greek shippers from the Mediterranean. The Soviets simply lowered their prices on the Black Sea to Marseille runs. Out went the Greeks.

Then there are the oil men of the United Arab Emirates. They're launching a tanker company which will operate out of Abu Dhabi and London. Eventually they'll have four 250,000-ton tankers.

Kuwait has contracted with Korean shipyards for construction of 15 general cargo ships each weighing 20,000 tons. Thus Kuwait is preparing to tell us, if you want oil, ship in our dry cargo freighters.

Iraq has ordered four 118,000-ton tankers from Japan. One already has been delivered. Algeria has three large gas carriers on order in French yards, costing $100 million each.

So it goes. Thus, if the Arabs declare a boycott, they'll be able to order their tankers to turn about while en route.

As for the Venezuelans, one of President Ford's closest advisers sputtered when I mentioned them the other day. They're brutal, he said. We've given those Latin Americans soft (low-interest) loans for decades. Then they stab us, seize our property. Hold us up on oil prices. Where are our friends?

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: The Secret Life of H. L. Hunt

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — H. L. Hunt, the eccentric oil billionaire, kept a tight lock during his life on a Pandora's box. When he died a few weeks ago at age 85, the lid was lifted for us. What we found, attested to in a suppressed court document, is an incredible tale of bribery, infidelity, corruption, tax cheating, political manipulation and worse.

The charges were brought by two of the old tycoon's closest associates -- his former personal assistant, John Curington, and trusted corporate aide John Brown.

Both have now been indicted for allegedly siphoning off funds from the Hunt empire. But their charges, made jointly under oath, shouldn't be dismissed without an investigation.

Haroldson Lafayette Hunt was a crusty curmudgeon, who liked to boast he was "the richest man in the world" but who had a reputation as a skinflint. He packed his lunch to his office in a brown paper sack and spread whole wheat sandwiches and dried prunes on hs desk, using the Wall Street Journal for a tablecloth.

But the secret life of the oil billionaire, according to Curington and Brown, was a different story. They portray him as a big-stakes gambler who squandered money to gratify his hates. Among his victims were some of the biggest names in American politics.

The story was buried in the legal filings of a 1970 lawsuit. After Curington and Brown made their charges, the suit was settled and the sworn statements were withdrawn. But we have obtained copies of the suppressed material. Among the allegations are these:

-- That Hunt "spent huge sums of cash" to mail out "an attack on John F. Kennedy and the Roman Catholic Church."

" That Hunt furnished cash to "a leading anti-Semitic propagandist ... with instructions for the funds to be used to create an unfavorable image for Jews."

-- That the oilman "spent large sums of cash" to defeat the late Lyndon Johnson, Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D.-Minn., William Fulbright, D.-Ark.., and Alan Cranston, D.-Calif. The document charges Hunt's corporate funds and employes were used for political purposes.

-- That Hunt cash went to Richard Nixon. This secret financing, it has been reported elsewhere, helped to put Nixon into the vice presidency in 1952.

-- That Hunt money was behind the George Wallace-Curtis LeMay third-party ticket in 1968. One estimate puts the Hunt contribution at $1 million.

-- That Hunt had a "confidential and clandestine transaction" with Federal Communications Commissioner Robert E. Lee. In other testimony, a lawyer quotes Curington as saying Hunt rewarded the commissioner for helping with his right-wing Life Line broadcasts. Lee acknowledged that he and Hunt were "pretty good friends" and that Hunt frequently called him, once about employes for Life Line. But Lee said all he ever got from Hunt was a quart of pecans one Christmas. "There were no business dealings," said the FCC commissioner. -- That Hunt once admitted he had "stolen in excess of $8 million from himself," using Swiss bank accounts. He allegedly told the tax collectors he lost it gambling.

-- That the billionaire used his employes to try to collect an $800,000 gambling debt from a Nevada casino owner, then used employes to protect him "from notorious gambler Frank Erickson, who claimed H. L. Hunt owed him $430,000." Hunt once claimed he. bet $125,000 with Erickson on a single football game.

-- That Hunt's employes were required to recruit women to travel with him, to explain away his infidelities and to straighten out a scandal involving a relative and a prominent Texas matron.

-- That Hunt sold food from his HLH product line "unfit for human consumption, knowing that such sales would end up in Negro and low-income areas."

-- That Hunt used illegal Mexican labor at his "Indian Hot Springs Resort in Hudspeth County, Texas" and diverted company funs to the private use of his family.

-- That Hunt made "gifts to public officials in return for favors." He allegedly also charged off as company expenses favor-currying gifts to both Arab and Jewish groups.

-- That Hunt compelled a bank and other business firms "which did business with Hunt Oil Co. to make certain kickbacks." In some cases, Hunt required them to contribute to his right-wing foundation and his Life Line broadcasts, his former associates allege.

-- That the billionarie paid off "certain key food buyers for chain stores ... to induce them to buy HLH products."

-- That Hunt diverted $70 million from his oil firm to pay for his food company, which then advertised in his right-wing publications.

-- That Hunt operated a bookie joint and chiseled the Internal Revenue Service for $11 million in taxes. Once he allegedly helped a former employe dodge a subpoena for a grand jury, which was investigating Hunt's gambling.

A Hunt spokesman pointed to Curington and Brown's current indictment as argument that they couldn't be trusted to tell the truth about the Hunts. The spokesman contended their accusations were untrue and should be classified as "smut."

But the detailed charges are part of the Texas Watergate scandal that has entangled many of the oil curmudgeon's survivors.

HELP FROM ROGUES

As suggested by Ernest Tricomi, editor of Packascope-USA magazine, it should be easy to devise a circular scale that compares a taxpayer's own contribution against the total federal budget.When a federal spending program is introduced, the taxpayer simply aligns the amount of his previous year's federal income tax and the cost of the program. He then reads through a window on the scale how much the program will cost him personally.

For example, suppose a congressman introduces legislation to save wild horses from extinction at a cost of $105 million, By twirling the dial of his "Ratio of Government's Unreasonable & Excessive Spending" (ROGUES), the taxpayers learns that the program will cost him $7.13 in taxes.

Such a figure is far more comprehensible to the average person than $105 million, says Tricomi. Bringing the "stupendosities" casually tossed about in Washington down to human size might help to achieve firmer control over the politicians by those who make it all possible — the taxpayers.

A BULL MARKET IN GOATS

Speaking of the cost of living, inflation has even hit the goat market.

At a recent sale in Ithaca, N.Y., a female goat (doe) sold for $2,250. Goats from as far away as California sold for an average price of $760.

According to the goat department editor of Countryside & SmallStock Journal, published in Waterloo, Wis., the top price at a similar sale last year was $1,725, and the year before that the highest bid was $1,300.

The prices reflect not only the erosion of the dollar, but the "surge of interest in the little dairy animals," claims the journal.

More people are moving to the country, it observes. They're interested in healthful food, in doing for themselves, in beating inflation. When they find out how fascinating goats are and how great goat milk tastes, they're sold.

"That can only mean," says Countryside, "our favorite animals will move out of the comic strips and toward the respect she deserves from a hungry world."

TIME FOR A NEW LOOK

Many well-intentioned lawmakers and others have sought to impose confiscatory gun control measures on all law-abiding citizens in the belief that such measures would automatically solve the problem of violent crimes. Such measures would not solve the problem. But the worst part of this preoccupation with gun controls is that it diverts attention from the real factors involved in effective crime prevention.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has listed factors affecing crime rates in its publication, "Uniform Crime Reports." They included such things as density and size of a community's population and the metropolitan area of which it is a part; composition of the population with reference to age, sex and race; economic status and mores of the population; educational, recreational and religious characteristics and effective strength of the police force. There are many other things listed, but nowhere is there mention in the FBI crime factor list of the impact of firearms controls on crime. There is good reason for this. The causes of crime and its control are too complex to respond to such a simplistic cure.

It is time for a new look and a fresh approach to crime control. Many of the most intractable problems of crime control have social, cultural, educational and economic roots. Trial and punishment for criminal action should be sure and reasonably swift. Particular penalties should be attached to use of a firearm in the commission of a crime. Too many serious and repeated offenders roam the streets. Free on bail pending trial or after serving minimal sentences, they are at liberty to strike again -- and they often do. There are many steps which can be taken to control crime, but taking guns away from the law-abiding citizen isn't one of them. Those who say it is are like ostriches sticking their heads in the sand to avoid confronting the more difficult or frightening aspects of life.

THEY GIVETH, THEY TAKETH AWAY

Our national officials are planning to give us all a rebate on our 1974 income taxes, which could mean several hundred dollars to some folks.

That's good.

Not so good however is another plan that would increase the Social Security tax on everyone, both the employee and the employer. If it passes, we'll all be paying more than we're going to save with the rebate.

The government giveth, and the government taketh away, and there's usually more of the latter than of the former.

WHOSE BELT NEEDS TIGHTENING?

During this time of recession and unemployment, there is much talk of needed belt tightening, but the only cry that has gone up so far is that the people should tighten their belts for the government.

In the past the American people have responded magnanimously with the sweat of their toil, but maybe the time has come when government should start doing some belt tightening for the people.

Average federal pay exceeds private pay by 46 per cent.

Whose belt needs tightening?

The federal government for the last two years has overpaid federal employes by more than a billion dollars per year, according to its own much discredited "Federal pay comparability survey."

Whose belt needs tightening?

The federal government in 1973 took $3.97 out of every $10 in income, leaving the recipient with only $6.03.

Two years earlier, it took $3.75, leaving the recipient with $6.25.

Whose belt needs tightening?

Remember it's your taxes they're spending.

NO CHANCE

Most everybody was found guilty but Richard Nixon in the Watergate trial. Our unelected President Ford didn't give the United States Senate a chance to try and prove Nixon guilty, letting him, maybe advising him to resign, and then giving him a full pardon for whatever he had done or might have done. Poor old Richard, he got so sick from what he had done, he went to the hospital and the doctors wouldn't let him tell whether he had lied, his friends had lied, or why he made all those tapes in the first place. We of this generation can always remember the Watergate, just like a lot of us still remember Teapot Dome. But it was a disdemeanor compared to the late crime of the administration. And if you or we have been convicted in either crime, our sentence would never have been reduced nor any parole given.

SPY STORIES

Since there is so much talk about the "spying" being done by our Central Intelligence Agency inside and outside of America, we ran across an interesting item in another newspaper about spying in the biblical times.

It seems that ever since men began dividing themselves into states and nations, there have been spies. Those with the most effective intelligence systems usually survived.

Moses, you remember, sent men "to spy out" the Land of Canaan. The instruction he gave them might have come right out of the CIA.

"See the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many ... and what the land is they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; and what cities they be that they dwell in; whether in tents or strongholds...and what the land is, whether it be fat or lean."

No doubt there were those who protested to Moses that it wasn't cricket to slip up on the Canaanites and find out what they were doing, with the aim of moving in and taking it over.

Of the twelve spies sent out to case the land, only Joshua and Caleb reported it was goodland and the Children of Israel could easily take it.

As we recall, they had some sort of investigation. The upshot was that the anti-spy crowd won out, and the Children of Israel were a generation late in claiming the Promised Land.

If you want to read spy stories, forget the CIA. Just get out your Old Testament. It's full of them.

SELLER'S MARKET NOW A BUYER'S MARKET

According to a world economic report, there are early warning signs of our economic problems that are very important but you will see very little statistical information published on them. We are referring to such thing as order cancellations or stretch-outs, and shrinking delivery times. Six months ago, suppliers were telling buyers that they couldn't deliver goods from periods ranging anywhere from 90 days to a year. Now, buyers can get immediate delivery. This is true with a whole range of products. Some months ago as delivery times lengthened, buyers panicked and ordered additional quantities for inventory, just so they wouldn't get stuck without critical materials. We at The Globe increased our inventory of newsprint. The same reasoning was followed by purchasing agents thoughout the economy. Thus, their inventory buying accelerated shortages while, at the same time, creating an artificial boom.

Once a company's requirements are well satisfied, there is no reason to keep filling up the warehouse, particularly if sales are slowing down. So it seems we have now arrived at the point where corporate inventories of nearly every product are in excess of rquirements. As a result, purchasing agents everywhere have just stopped buying. They are also cancelling orders or requesting delayed shipments. The shoe is now on the other foot. What was a seller's market only a few months ago is now becoming a buyer's mrket.

If you listen to the other side of the situation, you will find suppliers crying the blues over order stretch-outs. At the same time, they will quickly assure you they can provide delivery of most products almost immediately. Furthermore, plants that were once running overtime, yet could not deliver goods in less than 90 days , are now beginning to shut down because there are no orders. The softness in orders and stretch-outs pervades practically all levels of economic activity. None of this has yet been reflected in the published economic statistics. These order stretch-outs, coupled with other factors, indicate a readjustment and declining economy.

One economist in Chicago pointed out something that we think makes a lot of sense. He has noticed over the years that the consumer is much smarter than the businessman. The consumer sees trouble on the horizon earlier than the average businessman, and cuts his spending plans accordingly. On the other hand, business proceeds its merry way, increasing production and inventories, until it's toolate. Until there is a marked improvement in consume attitudes, there is little reason to expect any significant rebound in sales of such key durable goods as automobiles or appliances.

FREE ENTERPRISE

At a time when consumerism threatens to "protect" Americans right into a corner of strict regulation of everything we manufacture or use, it is refreshing to find the spirit of free enterprise effectively expressed by the winner of a high school journalism contest.

Miss Cathy Bowen, winner of the annual Editorial Award competition sponsored jointly by the University of Georgia and the Georgia Power Company, portrayed the vitality and benefits the free enterprise system has bestowed upon its "child," the United States. Written in the first person, Miss Bowen's perceptive editorial makes its point very forcefully. For example, an excerpt reads, "As her (America's) industry grew, I stood by to insure each American of his freedom to produce the quantity and quality of any product he chose. I stood by to see that my child created a sense of competition, the greatest force in any enterprise. As a result of this competition, the consumer profits, because the producer strives to keep his prices lower than his competitors Under my guidance and guardianship, my child -- the United States- will continue to grow and mature and prosper for many years to come."

A lot of wisdom is reflected in the editorial of this high school senior. As she stresses, free enterprise IS the backbone of the U.S. If we ever forget that fact and fail to safeguard our competitive system, our affluence, might and freedoms will crumble and mix with the dust of the great civilizations that have passed before us into the limbo of history.

COLORFUL STORY

When President Eisenhower and Winston Churchill took up painting, oils and easels were a common sight in Washington. This was not so when Mr. Eisenhower returned from Europe after the war to serve as Chief of Staff of the army. Subjects were hard to come by then, too. One day the general went to the Washington waterfront, according to Major General Wilton B. Persons, and offered a picturesque fisherman ten dollars if he would let him paint him.

The fisherman hesitated.

"What's the matter?" General Eisenhower asked, "isn't it enough?"

THE FIRST WIRETAP
By Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON--A great deal has been written about the man who invented the telephone, but very little has been said about the first man to tap one. As everyone in law enforcement knows, the telephone is absolutely worthless unless you can find out what the people on each end of the line are saying.

The man who gets full credit for having tapped the first telephone line anywhere in the world is J. Edgar Soosa, a young agent in the Justice Department during President Ulysses S. Grant's Administration.

Soosa was not only a dedicated law enforcement officer but a whiz at electronics. He believed that when fighting crime, domestic and foreign, you had to use every weapon at your disposal. It was thanks to Soosa's determination and skill that anyone can now tap a telephone in this country without fear of detection or retribution.

This is what happened: In 1875 Ulysses S. Grant was finishing out his term of office. Grant was hoping to run again in 1876 but he was worried about his political enemies whom he believed were everywhere. One in particular was an Alexander Graham Bell, a Scotsman who worked in Boston. Someone at the White House had told President Grant that Bell was working for the election of Rutherford B. Hayes. (The aide actually had confused Alexander Graham Bell with a Boston politician named Arnold Choate Bell, who was a big Hayes supporter.)

President Grant called in J. Edgar Soosa and told him, "This is very confidential but I want you to go to Boston and find out what Alexander Graham Bell is up to.

"When you get the information, I want you to report directly to me. Use any method you have to as long as you get results. If you get caught I'll see that you get an executive pardon."

Soosa, who was used to following orders, immediately proceeded to Boston. He discovered that Alexander Graham Bell was working with deaf children which obviously was a cover for his real job, which was to get Rutherford Hayes elected President.

Bell lived in a boarding house with an assistant named Thomas A. Watson. Soosa rented a room in the same house under the name of Zimbalist.

When both Bell and Watson went out one day, Soosa broke into their rooms. He discovered a series of wires going from one room to another. They were connected with strange looking speakers. His curiosity was aroused. Why were Bell and Watson communicating by these wires when their rooms were only 100 feet apart? It was obvious that they were afraid that if they were in the same room together they might be overheard.

Soosa reported his findings back to President Grant who became terribly perturbed. "We have to know what they're saying to each other," he said.

Soosa agreed. "I've been thinking about it. If I could attach a wire to their wire and have a speaker in my room, I could record everything they say."

"Then do it," Grant thundered.

"There's only one problem," Soosa said. "It may be illegal. I'm not sure you can attach a wire to somebody else's wire and listen in."

"Dammit," said the irritated President. "The national security of the United States is at stake. I want to know what they're plotting."

Soosa went back to Boston and attached a wire to Bell and Watson's. All during winter he sat with earphones on his head, but the line was dead. Then finally on the morning of March 10, 1876, Soosa's patience was rewarded. Over the line he heard Bell shout, "Mr. Watson, come here I want you."

Soosa immediately took the tape to Washington, D.C., and, while Grant sat drinking a whisky, the agent played back the immortal words.

Grant smiled. "Just as I suspected. They were out to get me. Mr. Soosa, you have made a great contribution to your country. In years to come every President will owe you a debt of gratitude and say, 'Thank God for Soosa, who made the first wiretap possible.' Without you, sir, the telephone wouldn't be worth a damn."

Instant Strangulation:
Arabs Building Own Oil Carrier Fleets
To Control Deliveries Around the World

NEW YORK--Global oil geopolitics was a vague beyond-the-horizon shadow hovering over the small groups of suddenly jobless angry men chattering around the skeletal hulk of a half-built tanker in what once was the bristling Brooklyn Navy Yard.

And in a broadcasting studio across the river in Manhattan, waterfront union leaders, a Longshoremen's chief and a Teamsters union president angrily told me and two city officials that revamping of a few West Side piers could put 4,000 dock-wallopers and 18,000 other workers in the support pipeline back to work. But Longshoremen's executive vice president Johnny Bowers and Teamsters local 707 chief Louis Alimena were told there is no money because there is no tenant even for one pier.

Everybody sought a solution. For the moment there is none. The Arab and Venezuelan oil exporters have made the problem insoluble.

These oil exporters, the sheiks, the emirs, the Arab presidents and kings, and the Venezuelan neo-socialists are building their own fleets of oil tankers. And dry carriers too.

Soon they will be able to ship as well as sell their own oil. Soon they will be able to tell us to import dry cargo as well in their own freighters.

These aren't "boats" as we landside people say. The craft are huge tankers--running between 200,000 to gargantuan 500,000 tons each. They can carry enough oil to fuel a small nation for weeks. And million-tonners are on the drawing board.

Virtually all the Arab states are building these fleets, according to one of the world's leading oil authorities, Walter J. Levy--an expert respected in Arab as well as Western nations. Orders for big tankers have been placed by Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the Emirates, Iraq and Algeria, as well as by Venezuela.

Already Saudi Arabia has a 40 per cent preference regulation. That is, 40 per cent of what you buy there you must ship in their own bottoms and tankers.

What point then in building tankers here or anywhere in American shipyards? There is no guaranteed cargo. The costs are heavy. There may be another boycott. The Arabs and Venezuelans will be able to pressure shippers into using their newly acquired fleets.

So the work has been stopped on the big tanker in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The 1,800 men laid off, and the 1,000 who were discharged last month, mostly are from the big city's minorities--blacks and Puerto Ricans. Where do they find bread now?

As for the jobless longshoremen whose work is drying up because there are fewer and fewer tenants for the world-famed Manhattan West Side piers, they can exist as long as the shippers are willing to pay a Guaranteed Annual Income for the unemployed--a jobless subsidy costing the shippers $40 million annually in this harbor alone. How long can that go on?

President Ford vetoed the National Transportation Security Act of 1974 which would have guaranteed that 20 per cent (later 30 per cent) of imports into the U.S. would have to be carried in American vessels. So there isn't much hope.

It will all go to the Arabs (with smaller intake by the Venezuelans) such as the Saudis. The latter have recently organized the Samarco Co., in partnership with American firms. It has arranged for early delivery of three huge oil tankers--the first "weighing" 270,000 tons. The others will bulk up to 140,000 tons dead weight. In all they soon will have tankers totaling 600,000 tons. And deep-sea freighters for dry cargo. That's for starters.

Soon they will be training Saudis as seamen, ship officers and masters. On land, there will be a management cadre. Then they'll be able to undercut the Western world. That's how the Russians drove the Greek shippers from the Mediterranean. The Soviets simply lowered their prices on the Black Sea to Marseille runs. Out went the Greeks.

Then there are the oil men of the United Arab Emirates. They're launching a tanker company which will operate out of Abu Dhabi and London. Eventually they'll have four 250,000-ton tankers.

Kuwait has contracted with Korean shipyards for construction of 15 general cargo ships each weighing 20,000 tons. Thus Kuwait is preparing to tell us, if you want oil, ship in our dry cargo freighters.

Iraq has ordered four 118,000-ton tankers from Japan. One already has been delivered. Algeria has three large gas carriers on order in French yards, costing $100 million each.

So it goes. Thus, if the Arabs declare a boycott, they'll be able to order their tankers to turn about while en route.

As for the Venezuelans, one of President Ford's closest advisers sputtered when I mentioned them the other day. They're brutal, he said. We've given those Latin Americans soft (low-interest) loans for decades. Then they stab us, seize our property. Hold us up on oil prices. Where are our friends?

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: The Secret Life of H. L. Hunt

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — H. L. Hunt, the eccentric oil billionaire, kept a tight lock during his life on a Pandora's box. When he died a few weeks ago at age 85, the lid was lifted for us. What we found, attested to in a suppressed court document, is an incredible tale of bribery, infidelity, corruption, tax cheating, political manipulation and worse.

The charges were brought by two of the old tycoon's closest associates -- his former personal assistant, John Curington, and trusted corporate aide John Brown.

Both have now been indicted for allegedly siphoning off funds from the Hunt empire. But their charges, made jointly under oath, shouldn't be dismissed without an investigation.

Haroldson Lafayette Hunt was a crusty curmudgeon, who liked to boast he was "the richest man in the world" but who had a reputation as a skinflint. He packed his lunch to his office in a brown paper sack and spread whole wheat sandwiches and dried prunes on hs desk, using the Wall Street Journal for a tablecloth.

But the secret life of the oil billionaire, according to Curington and Brown, was a different story. They portray him as a big-stakes gambler who squandered money to gratify his hates. Among his victims were some of the biggest names in American politics.

The story was buried in the legal filings of a 1970 lawsuit. After Curington and Brown made their charges, the suit was settled and the sworn statements were withdrawn. But we have obtained copies of the suppressed material. Among the allegations are these:

-- That Hunt "spent huge sums of cash" to mail out "an attack on John F. Kennedy and the Roman Catholic Church."

" That Hunt furnished cash to "a leading anti-Semitic propagandist ... with instructions for the funds to be used to create an unfavorable image for Jews."

-- That the oilman "spent large sums of cash" to defeat the late Lyndon Johnson, Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D.-Minn., William Fulbright, D.-Ark.., and Alan Cranston, D.-Calif. The document charges Hunt's corporate funds and employes were used for political purposes.

-- That Hunt cash went to Richard Nixon. This secret financing, it has been reported elsewhere, helped to put Nixon into the vice presidency in 1952.

-- That Hunt money was behind the George Wallace-Curtis LeMay third-party ticket in 1968. One estimate puts the Hunt contribution at $1 million.

-- That Hunt had a "confidential and clandestine transaction" with Federal Communications Commissioner Robert E. Lee. In other testimony, a lawyer quotes Curington as saying Hunt rewarded the commissioner for helping with his right-wing Life Line broadcasts. Lee acknowledged that he and Hunt were "pretty good friends" and that Hunt frequently called him, once about employes for Life Line. But Lee said all he ever got from Hunt was a quart of pecans one Christmas. "There were no business dealings," said the FCC commissioner. -- That Hunt once admitted he had "stolen in excess of $8 million from himself," using Swiss bank accounts. He allegedly told the tax collectors he lost it gambling.

-- That the billionaire used his employes to try to collect an $800,000 gambling debt from a Nevada casino owner, then used employes to protect him "from notorious gambler Frank Erickson, who claimed H. L. Hunt owed him $430,000." Hunt once claimed he. bet $125,000 with Erickson on a single football game.

-- That Hunt's employes were required to recruit women to travel with him, to explain away his infidelities and to straighten out a scandal involving a relative and a prominent Texas matron.

-- That Hunt sold food from his HLH product line "unfit for human consumption, knowing that such sales would end up in Negro and low-income areas."

-- That Hunt used illegal Mexican labor at his "Indian Hot Springs Resort in Hudspeth County, Texas" and diverted company funs to the private use of his family.

-- That Hunt made "gifts to public officials in return for favors." He allegedly also charged off as company expenses favor-currying gifts to both Arab and Jewish groups.

-- That Hunt compelled a bank and other business firms "which did business with Hunt Oil Co. to make certain kickbacks." In some cases, Hunt required them to contribute to his right-wing foundation and his Life Line broadcasts, his former associates allege.

-- That the billionarie paid off "certain key food buyers for chain stores ... to induce them to buy HLH products."

-- That Hunt diverted $70 million from his oil firm to pay for his food company, which then advertised in his right-wing publications.

-- That Hunt operated a bookie joint and chiseled the Internal Revenue Service for $11 million in taxes. Once he allegedly helped a former employe dodge a subpoena for a grand jury, which was investigating Hunt's gambling.

A Hunt spokesman pointed to Curington and Brown's current indictment as argument that they couldn't be trusted to tell the truth about the Hunts. The spokesman contended their accusations were untrue and should be classified as "smut."

But the detailed charges are part of the Texas Watergate scandal that has entangled many of the oil curmudgeon's survivors.

Pharmacy school to hold seminar in Sikeston

Sikeston will be the site of one of six seminars conducted by the University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Pharmacy on Feb. 23 at the Ramada Inn.

The morning portion of each seminar will review eye diseases and problems and will evaluate the effectiveness of prescriptions and over the counter medications. In the afternoon, the faculty will discuss changes expected under the proposed federal maximum allowable cost program and its possible impact on community and hospital practice.

The maximum allowable cost is a set of proposed guidelines limiting payment by the government for prescription medications bought by members of various federal health care programs.

The session will include a look at changes national health insurance programs will bring about in prescription coverage and vitality of the pharmacy community, and also will examine professional liability.

Analysis predict losses for big 4 auto makers

DETROIT (AP) — Some financial analysts say the nation's slumping auto industry, traditionally among the most profitable in the world, may be operating in the red for the first time.

Investment counselors for several large banks and brokerage houses predict that together the four major auto companies probably will lose money in the first quarter of 1975.

A half-dozen analysts surveyed by The Associated Press said they could not recall the industry as a whole reporting net losses in a quarter before, and certainly never in a nonstrike period.

The analysts predict that General Motors Corp. this quarter will make no more than the $120 million it earned in the same period last year, its lowest return in 26 years. GM earned a record $2.4 billion in 1973.

The Ford Motor Co. is expected to lose between $75 million and $100 million this quarter, compared with a $124 million quarterly profit in 1974.

The analysts estimated Chrysler Corp. will lose at least $25 million and as much as $50 million this quarter. They made no predictions for American Motors Corp., the No. 4 auto maker, although they said AMC is expected to lose.

Combined 1974 profits of the Big Three are expected to be off about 65 per cent, to about $1.3 billion. GM, Ford and Chrysler had record combined profits of $3.6 billion on sales of $71 billion in 1973.

Meanwhile, there were these other economic developments:

—In the wake of cancellation by the Soviet Union of orders for 3.7 million bushels of American wheat, Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz said the government plans to relax export curbs on wheat and soybeans. The restrictions were imposed in October because of fears heavy exports would bring on shortages and higher prices for Americans.

—Sugar industry spokesmen said some refiners have been forced to halt operations temporarily, or plan to, because of heavy unsold stocks. Raw sugar prices have backed off $24 from a peak of $64.50 per 100 pounds Nov. 20.

—Stock prices moved higher for the sixth straight day, with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials up 11.19 to 705.96 at the close on Wednesday. It was first time since Aug. 22 that the Dow had closed over 700.

—A spokesman for the Commerce Department said the agency plans to revise its monthly index of leading economic indicators. He said the index had given only a faint warning in mid-1973 that recession was on the way, then at the start of 1974 the inflation factor turned the indicator sharply higher when it should have gone the other way.

--The Labor Department said 851,700 Americans filed new unemployment compensation claims during the week ending Jan. 18, compared with a record 970,000 filed the previous week and 464,300 during the same period a year ago.

—Chairman Walter B. Wriston of New York's First City National Bank predicted that by the end of the week the prime interest rate will be cut another one-quarter of one per cent from the generally prevailing 9½ per cent. The prime is the interest rate banks charge their best customers. It usually signals a trend in consumer loan rates.

Sugar business hits slump; some refineries shut down

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Sugar warehouses across the nation are full and sales have been so slow some refineries have been forced to shut down.

It is a sharp comedown for sugar, which rose 400 per cent in price last year to join oil as a symbol of shortage and inflation.

Raw sugar has fallen $24 since it topped out at $64.50 per 100 pounds last Nov. 20.

The world's largest refinery, the C&H plant in San Francisco, called a five-day layoff. The second largest, Amstar's refinery here, has just reopened after a week's shutdown.

"Other refineries indicated they, too, were shutting down," said Saul Kolodny, a spokesman for Amstar Corp. in New York City. "I would characterize it as a temporary oversupply in the market."

This is the industry's slack season and part of the slump is normal, he added. But there was nothing routine about the accompanying sag in prices.

Amstar's wholesale list price for a five-pound sack of sugar has taken five steps down from a peak of $3.74 last Nov. 25. The latest, effective Friday, is $2.48.

Kolodny said supermarket prices often reflect the higher wholesale price of sugar that was in the supply pipeline and hasn't been depleted.

During the week ending Nov. 23, a time when sugar was reported in short supply and people were stocking up, the nation's refineries shipped 217,877 tons a week, compared with 173,067 tons for the same week a year earlier.

On Nov. 20, the market price broke downward.

With cheaper sugar looming, supermarket orders slacked off. For the week ending Jan. 18, shipments were down to 108,816 tons.

"When the price of sugar was going up, people figured they better buy today because tomorrow the price will be higher," said Nick Kominus at the U.S. Cane Sugar Refiners Association in Washington.

"Now you've got the reverse situation. Instead of buying, people are eating up their inventory. At some point the market will correct itself, but when that will be, who knows."

Meanwhile, the Hawaii Sugar Planters Association said soaring sugar prices resulted in a tripling of the 1974 gross revenues for Hawaii's cane sugar industry — $740 million in total revenues last year compared with $232 million in 1973. The rise came despite an 8 per cent drop in total sugar production in the islands.

15 adult evening classes to begin instruction today

HOWARDVILLE — The New Madrid County R-1 Vocational Technical Skills Center plans to open instruction in 15 adult evening classes, beginning tonight.

The classes are scheduled to run three hours weekly from 6 until 9 p.m. on Thursday, with some exceptions.

A minimum of 10 enrollees is necessary to open a class, and the enrollees must be adults presently working in the field of their instructional choice and need instruction to improve or upgrade skills, or they must be persons presently unemployed who desire to develop job entry skills. Once the minimum of 10, meeting either requirement, is reached, courses are open to all up to the maximum that can be handled.

Fees are charged to cover the cost ofmaterials used in the instruction and are payable when the course begins.

The courses offered include:

Air conditioning and refrigeration -- this 18-week, 54-hour course will involve principles of controls, trouble shooting and repair.

Auto body and fender -- this 18-week, 54-hour course will involve preparation for and the finishing of the automobile.

Automotive mechanics -- This nine-week, 27-hour course will involve principles and practices of automotive engine overhaul.

Accounting -- This 18-week, 54-hour course is a continuation of basic record keeping.Those with any knowledge of bookkeeping may attend the course.

Business data processing -- This 18-week, 54-hour course concerns interior finishing. Painting, paperhanging and dry wall finish are all a part of the instruction.

Clothing and textile -- This 9-week, 27-hour course deals with refurbishing clothing. The person entering should know the rudiments of machine sewing.

Drafting -- This 18-week, 54-hour course is an extension of basic design drafting. However, individuals work at their own rate and skill level. Persons with very little drafting background may enter.

Farm mechanics -- This nine-week, 27-hour course is designed for the practicing farmer and deals with maintaining and overhauling equipment in current farm use.

Graphic arts -- This combination 18-week, 54-hour course concerns the principle of offset printing work.

Health occupations -- These short three-week, nine-hour courses are planned for persons interested in child care and its application to babysitting. There will be three enrollments for this course. Each person enrolling will attend three classes.

Machine shop -- This class will meet for nine weeks and includes 27 hours of instruction. It will cover the basic machine shop practices, measuring, centering and machine familiarization. The class will meet on Tuesday from 6 to 9 p.m. Persons interested should come to enrollment at the center on Jan. 30.

Reception skills -- This 18-week, 54-hour course is designed for enrollees who have no shorthand, or those who want to brush up on these skills.

Typing -- This nine-week, 27-hour course is designed for persons who have keyboard knowledge but need to type better and faster.

Welding -- This 9-week, 27-hour course will cover the fundamentals of combination welding. Individuals with a knowledge of any type of welding will be worked with individually toward reaching a skill level in any phase of welding.

Rodeo Association elects officers

Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Association, Inc. officers were elected Tuesday night at Sikeston Country Club.

Steve Sikes was elected president, Dennis Ziegenhorn was named vice president and Ken Walters was elected secretary-treasurer.

Previously elected to the board of directors were Dan Wagner, Bob Taylor, Don Newton, Gene Yokley, Lloyd Stoner and Jim Cox, in addition to the officers.

A business meeting was conducted in which the annual rodeo report was given, plans for the 1975 rodeo were discussed and corporation bylaws were adopted.

The rodeo board is responsible for providing guidance in all rodeo activities and establishing policy for the annual rodeo.

Pharmacy school to hold seminar in Sikeston

Sikeston will be the site of one of six seminars conducted by the University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Pharmacy on Feb. 23 at the Ramada Inn.

The morning portion of each seminar will review eye diseases and problems and will evaluate the effectiveness of prescriptions and over the counter medications. In the afternoon, the faculty will discuss changes expected under the proposed federal maximum allowable cost program and its possible impact on community and hospital practice.

The maximum allowable cost is a set of proposed guidelines limiting payment by the government for prescription medications bought by members of various federal health care programs.

The session will include a look at changes national health insurance programs will bring about in prescription coverage and vitality of the pharmacy community, and also will examine professional liability.

For further information, contact the UMKC division for continuing education.

Analysis predict losses for big 4 auto makers

DETROIT (AP) — Some financial analysts say the nation's slumping auto industry, traditionally among the most profitable in the world, may be operating in the red for the first time.

Investment counselors for several large banks and brokerage houses predict that together the four major auto companies probably will lose money in the first quarter of 1975.

A half-dozen analysts surveyed by The Associated Press said they could not recall the industry as a whole reporting net losses in a quarter before, and certainly never in a nonstrike period.

The analysts predict that General Motors Corp. this quarter will make no more than the $120 million it earned in the same period last year, its lowest return in 26 years. GM earned a record $2.4 billion in 1973.

The Ford Motor Co. is expected to lose between $75 million and $100 million this quarter, compared with a $124 million quarterly profit in 1974.

The analysts estimated Chrysler Corp. will lose at least $25 million and as much as $50 million this quarter. They made no predictions for American Motors Corp., the No. 4 auto maker, although they said AMC is expected to lose.

Combined 1974 profits of the Big Three are expected to be off about 65 per cent, to about $1.3 billion. GM, Ford and Chrysler had record combined profits of $3.6 billion on sales of $71 billion in 1973.

Meanwhile, there were these other economic developments:

—In the wake of cancellation by the Soviet Union of orders for 3.7 million bushels of American wheat, Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz said the government plans to relax export curbs on wheat and soybeans. The restrictions were imposed in October because of fears heavy exports would bring on shortages and higher prices for Americans.

—Sugar industry spokesmen said some refiners have been forced to halt operations temporarily, or plan to, because of heavy unsold stocks. Raw sugar prices have backed off $24 from a peak of $64.50 per 100 pounds Nov. 20.

—Stock prices moved higher for the sixth straight day, with the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials up 11.19 to 705.96 at the close on Wednesday. It was first time since Aug. 22 that the Dow had closed over 700.

—A spokesman for the Commerce Department said the agency plans to revise its monthly index of leading economic indicators. He said the index had given only a faint warning in mid-1973 that recession was on the way, then at the start of 1974 the inflation factor turned the indicator sharply higher when it should have gone the other way.

--The Labor Department said 851,700 Americans filed new unemployment compensation claims during the week ending Jan. 18, compared with a record 970,000 filed the previous week and 464,300 during the same period a year ago.

—Chairman Walter B. Wriston of New York's First City National Bank predicted that by the end of the week the prime interest rate will be cut another one-quarter of one per cent from the generally prevailing 9½ per cent. The prime is the interest rate banks charge their best customers. It usually signals a trend in consumer loan rates.

Sugar business hits slump; some refineries shut down

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Sugar warehouses across the nation are full and sales have been so slow some refineries have been forced to shut down.

It is a sharp comedown for sugar, which rose 400 per cent in price last year to join oil as a symbol of shortage and inflation.

Raw sugar has fallen $24 since it topped out at $64.50 per 100 pounds last Nov. 20.

The world's largest refinery, the C&H plant in San Francisco, called a five-day layoff. The second largest, Amstar's refinery here, has just reopened after a week's shutdown.

"Other refineries indicated they, too, were shutting down," said Saul Kolodny, a spokesman for Amstar Corp. in New York City. "I would characterize it as a temporary oversupply in the market."

This is the industry's slack season and part of the slump is normal, he added. But there was nothing routine about the accompanying sag in prices.

Amstar's wholesale list price for a five-pound sack of sugar has taken five steps down from a peak of $3.74 last Nov. 25. The latest, effective Friday, is $2.48.

Kolodny said supermarket prices often reflect the higher wholesale price of sugar that was in the supply pipeline and hasn't been depleted.

During the week ending Nov. 23, a time when sugar was reported in short supply and people were stocking up, the nation's refineries shipped 217,877 tons a week, compared with 173,067 tons for the same week a year earlier.

On Nov. 20, the market price broke downward.

With cheaper sugar looming, supermarket orders slacked off. For the week ending Jan. 18, shipments were down to 108,816 tons.

"When the price of sugar was going up, people figured they better buy today because tomorrow the price will be higher," said Nick Kominus at the U.S. Cane Sugar Refiners Association in Washington.

"Now you've got the reverse situation. Instead of buying, people are eating up their inventory. At some point the market will correct itself, but when that will be, who knows."

Meanwhile, the Hawaii Sugar Planters Association said soaring sugar prices resulted in a tripling of the 1974 gross revenues for Hawaii's cane sugar industry — $740 million in total revenues last year compared with $232 million in 1973. The rise came despite an 8 per cent drop in total sugar production in the islands.

Ann Landers

Teen-aged atheist labels God as unneeded crutch

Dear Ann Landers: This is for the girl who had read her little sister's diary and wrote, "Sis and her boyfriend are involved in some very heavy petting. What's even worse, my sister's boyfriend does not believe in God."

I am a 16-year-old atheist and I'm not ashamed of it. Atheism is not evil, nor is it immoral, it's just another way of thinking. Some of my best friends are either atheists or they seriously doubt the existence of God. I did not choose them as friends because of this common bond. They are decent, honest people. They don't use drugs, and they've never been in trouble with the police.

Atheists do not want or need help in becoming Christians. I feel God is just a crutch, and even though He is comforting to others I cannot use Him.

Please print this letter, Ann. I've never seen anything in your column about atheists and I think it's about time.--Not Ashamed

Dear Not Ashamed: I respect your right to be an atheist, but I would not be surprised if you changed your mind by the time you reached adulthood. Sixteen is a tender age to make such a big decision.

You say, "God is just a crutch and you cannot use Him." None of us knows when we will break a leg and need not one crutch--but two.

Speaking strictly for myself, I can't imagine excluding God from my life. I need all the help I can get. So do you, dear, but you don't know it--yet.

Dear Ann Landers: Here is my bit of Monday-morning quarterbacking for some young guys out there who are playing some pretty risky games without knowing the turf, the score, or the league. I learned the hard way.

If you don't want children, don't order any. Sounds crazy? Well, get smart. There are from 500 million to two billion sperm in a single male ejaculation.

When you go to bed with a girl, if she is anywhere from 13 to 42, the order might be filled. Never mind what SHE says about the precautions she has taken. She could be lying, uninformed or just plain mistaken. The result may be an unexpected, ill-timed, loveless marriage. I know because--I Happened To Me

Dear You: It has also happened to millions of others. Thank you for putting it into a few crisp, well-chosen words. (Are you listening, students?)

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago, a woman entered my husband's life and caused me no end of grief. She took my husband away. I was so full of hate I spent almost every waking hour wishing she was dead. I really believed that if I wished hard enough, it would happen.

Within seven months that woman died of a broken blood vessel in her head. They called it an aneurysm. She had never been sick a day in her life. It was totally unexpected.

My husband came back to me and I accepted him. It wasn't easy, but we were able to make a go of it. Then, six months later, my beloved brother dropped dead of the very same thing. Now I am so filled with guilt I am miserable. I think God is paying me back. Please say something to help.--Wretched And Grieving

Dear Friend: God doesn't "pay people back." Both deaths were a coincidence. Your wishing the woman dead had nothing to do with her dying. Your brother's fatal aneurysm would have occurred regardless.

I suggest counseling--either by your clergyman or a therapist. You must get this monkey off your back or you'll crack up. Get Going.

Got those wedding bell blues over costs. . .guest list. . .what to wear. . .and other details? Ann Landers's completely new "The Bride's Guide" will help. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

At Wit's End By Erma Bombeck

Last Friday, I opened the door and there stood Frank and Martha looking like an ad for Pepto-Bismol.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "You both look miserable."

Martha opened her handbag and shoved a letter at me. "We got this today from Pam."

"Pam? Your college senior? Wrote you a letter? It's the first one she's written since she's been to college, isn't it?"

"There was one," said Martha. "Remember when we hadn't heard from her in two years and Frank got annoyed and sent a letter with a note saying, 'Did you get the check I enclosed in the last letter for $200?' " I nodded. "Well, she sent back a letter right away and asked, 'What two hundred dollars?' "

"They don't like cheap tricks," I said shaking my head.

"I know. It wasn't the warmest letter in the world. It was addressed to 'Occupant.' "

"We're worried sick," said Frank. "College kids never write their parents unless they have something to hide. You know Dick Frack who lives down the street from us? The guy with acute tennis elbow."

"I didn't know Dick played tennis."

"He doesn't. It's from writing too many checks with a sloppy grip on his ballpoint. Anyway, he has three daughters in college. He never gets any mail. How do you think I'm going to feel when Dick asks, 'Did you hear from your daugher lately?' "

"What do you suppose is in the letter?" asked Martha.

"You mean you haven't opened it? Give it to me. Well, she can't be too far out. She only put a three-cent stamp on it and there's seven cents due."

They brightened as aI slit open the letter

"Dear Mom and Dad," I read.

"I don't like it," interrupted Martha, "She hasn't called us anything but Martha and Fred since high school."

" Doin't get too depressed," I said. "She misspelled Mom." To continue. "I am enrolled in a creative writing class this semester and teacher assigned us to write our parents. Love, Pam."

They both sat there staring into space. "First a letter home," said Frank. "Then completing an assignment. Next thing you know she'll be going to class regularly, doing her laundry each week, making her bed each day, getting enough sleep, graduating and getting a job. I say when education starts to interfere with college it's time to come home."

Chaffee woman plans wedding

CHAFFEE--Mr. and Mrs. Vernon M. Hinkebein announce the engagement of their daughter Frances Marena to Michael Edward Horrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Horrell of Lutesville.

Miss Hinkebein is a 1972 graduate of Delta High School and attended Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau. She is employed by Bank of Chaffee.

Horrell, a 1969 graduate of Leopold High School, served two years in the Navy and now attends SeMo State University. He also is employed by Rhea Optical Co. in Cape Girardeau.

An April 19 wedding is planned.

Local attorney gives program

Geroge W. Gilmore presented a program on the use of library reference and research books found in law office libraries at a meeting of the Cape Girardeau, Mississippi and Scott Counties Legal Secretaries Association Thursday at the Gilmore & Gilmore law office.

Miss America labeled outmoded

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In 1960 at Atlantic City, dazzling Nancy Fleming told Bert Parks "a woman's place is in the home," shoved off her sewing, then went on to be crowned "Miss America." She was queen of the country's beauties.

Now — two children and a divorce later — television talk show hostess Nancy Fleming says the pageant which thrust her into the nation's eye perpetuates an outmoded concept of women.

"Miss America is not a real person," she said in a recent interview. "She's something that happens every year.

"Times have changed in the past 14 years since I was Miss America," said Miss Fleming, who is now a card carrying member of the National Organization for Woman. "Women between the ages of 18 and 22 are much more issue-oriented than we were. I'm amazed that they can get 50 girls from 50 states."

Contestants are very unlikely to open up to Bert Parks about today's "new morality," she said. "When they're contestants, they always come on as very right-wing politically, and for God, the flag and apple pie."

She said when they appear on the pageant a few years later, "They seem to be wearing the most outrageous clothes — slinky jump suits cut to the navel. It's as though they want to say: 'There's another side of me.' " Miss Fleming, who receiveed a $10,000 college scholarship for beauty, says the money ought to be for outstanding service to the community.

She said it was hypocritical of pageant officials to conduct swimming suit competition then to bar Miss America from being photographed in a swimming suit during her reign, except for the traditional water-skiing shot in Cypress Gardens. She likened the stance to the "look but don't touch" concept of Playboy bunnies.

"They say it's not a flesh show 'but we do want to get a look at their bodies,' " she said laughing. "They say they are judging the girls on 'beauty of form, face and postue' " and other "incredible euphemisms."

No sooner had the strains of "There she is Miss America" faded than 18-year-old Nancy Fleming was barnstorming high schools around the country, armed with a well rehearsed speech on preparing for the future.

Her face appeared on a billboard welcoming people to her hometown, Montague, Mich., population 2,500. Tourists took snapshots of her parents' home and plucked flowers there.

Long after her reign ended, people still were whispering "That's Miss America." Then she married. Ten years later she was divorced and looking for work.

She became co-host of a call-in television show, and now is cohosting a new local talk show.

Maid of Cotton is versatile

Elegant gowns and blue jeans mix

By JACKIE SCHOENEMAN

Known nationwide as the "blue jean girl," Kathryn Tenkhoff's long legs will be swathed in swirling ballroom gowns or bared while wearing soft, sweet patio dresses and flowing dinner dresses for her role as Maid of Cotton for 1975.

The 21-year-old Miss Tenkhoff was selected from a field of 20 finalists last December in Memphis, Tenn. The Maid of Cotton selection was sponsored by the National Cotton Council.

Although Miss Tenkhoff still staunchly defends her strong liking for jeans, she says she prefers dresses to pants simply because "dresses are a lot more feminine." In fact, she even likes the new skirt length--just below-the-knee--for easy traveling and being able to walk upstairs without embarrassment.

The 40-outfit wardrobe Miss Tenkhoff will model on her five-month tour was designed by Teal Traina of New York.

With the National Cotton Council's fashion co-ordinator by her side, the new Maid of Cotton made sure her taste for neutrals and pastels was expressed. And anything the designer missed, Miss Tenkhoff filled in the gaps of her wardrobe with fashions by such notables as Bill Blass or Halston. This includes substituting colorful napkins, made of cotton, of course, for silk scarves.

Painstakingly packed on hangers in 20 large suitcases, the all-cotton wardrobe will become Miss Tenkhoff's after she surrenders the title.

She has surrendered seven pounds of body weight from her 5-foot, 9-inch frame in the excitement and hard work of meeting people. Now at 130 pounds, Miss Tenkhoff manages to force down pancakes each morning, at the insistence of her tour manager, Debbie Ploch, and Vicki Hall, tour secretary. This keeps her size 10 clothes fitting snugly.

Other than these early morning struggles, Miss Tenkhoff says the three women she and her chaperones, Misses Hall and Ploch) "work together exceptionally well as a team. I admire and respect them. I don't disappear into closets."

That last statement is not entirely true. Once in a fit of good humor, she hid in a closet in the Peabody Hotel in Memphis to test them as chaperones. They passed, she said.

Another thing Miss Tenkhoff would deny is calling the Maid of Cotton competition a pageant. Call it a selection instead. "This was not your regular greedy-type pageant. The girls were interviewed and judged on how they could handle themselves in different social situations, like dinner parties, luncheons and banquets."

Besides being attractive, the Maid of Cotton finalists are selected for campus activities and their worth to the community, she said.

"I was very awed (with the girls)," Miss Tenkhoff noted.

So awed in fact that she made the statement to an Associated Press reporter after being named Maid of Cotton that "she needed to clean up her act."

What did she mean by that? Well..."It just means that everywhere I go and whatever I say, I represent the entire cotton industry. I must take into consideration all information so I can communicate with other people. My opinion is not just my own."

Even though Miss Tenkhoff has decided not to blurt out whatever pops into her head, she is not a "robotized" Maid of Cotton. "It is funny but I'm not told what to say or what to wear. I'm trained in every aspect but it is pretty much left up to me what to say. That's really nice."

Kathryn Tenkhoff

Contrary to rumors, Miss Tenkhoff does not have a speech-writer but wishes she did. "But it's better if I write my own."

Her goodwill tour ends in late May, after which she will be on "call" for National Cotton Council functions. The tour includes such cities as Phoenix, Ariz., for the NCC convention, and San Francisco, Calif., where she "just can't wait to try different foods." She will then tour Canada.

At cherry blossom time in Washington, D.C., Miss Tenkhoff will be the featured model at a style show given for congressional wives, as well as the honored guest at a reception attended by congressman from both houses, and will lunch with such political figures as majority and minority leaders of both houses, the Speaker of the House, Secretary of Agriculture and Missouri congressmen.

A new item on her Washington agenda includes an International Club meeting, which has ambassadors, cabinet members, congressman and businessmen among its members.

To top it all off, a chat with President Gerald Ford is in the planning stages.

After each major tour date, the three women have free time for short sightseeing trips.

But none of these will be as totally different as Miss Tenkhoff's six-week tour of Europe, during which she will visit England, Sweden and Belgium. In each country she will meet the United States ambassador and lend her presence to store promotions of cotton products.

In Paris, France, the Cotton Maid may have the opportunity to model originals by such fashion designers as Pierre Cardin at such locales as the Arc de Triomphe.

Then it's back to the United States for the Cotton Carnival in Memphis and a tour of 30 major cities, talking to bank officials, high schools, rotary clubs and cotton industry leaders.

Despite the trappings of the Cotton Maid title, such as a $1,500 education scholarship, a 1975 automobile and clothes, Miss Tenkhoff kept her cool the night she was selected Cotton Maid until she saw her parents, and then she claims she only became misty-eyed.

However, being nonplussed seems to be a family trait. "We didn't really go down there with the thought of winning," says Miss Tenkhoff's mother, Mrs. Alton G. Tenkhoff, 118 Thomas Drive.

However, Tenkhoff describes the scene differently. The tension builds up as it (the selection) drags on. All this time they (selection officials) are whittling down the field of contestants. Everybody keeps thinking who will win and waiting to get it (the selection) over.

"We didn't realize at the time what the title meant. But it's a wonderful opportunity for her later on to get a job," Mrs. Tenkhoff added.

Miss Tenkhoff is an advertising-public relations journalism senior at University of Missouri-Columbia.

Although she jokingly says the closest connection her father has to the cotton industry has been stuffing cotton balls into medicine bottles as a pharmacist, Tenkhoff is not ready to play the hurt father. Rather, he points out that of the top five contestants, two other girls' fathers were also pharmacists.

Mrs. Tenkhoff has no fears of her daughter being adversely affected by the tour. "The tour is a little bit out of touch with reality because anything she wants she gets. The tour manager solves any of her problems.

"But Kathy is a level-headed person and has a tremendous sense of humor. She'll be able to keep an even keel."

To keep in contact with daughter-turned-celebrity, the Tenkhoffs plan to send her taped conversations since they always know where she will be. Miss Tenkhoff also is allowed a free 15-minute telephone call once a week.

"We miss all our kids, even our married daughter," Tenkhoff said.

"When we were signing papers for insurance coverage (for their daughter's tour), I thought we were giving our child away but the cotton people are really nice," Mrs. Tenkhoff said.

Talk on penguins given to Xi Zeta

A scientist who recently researched penguins was the guest speaker for the Jan. 21 meeting of Xi Epsilon Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority in the home of Mrs. Ewart Taylor, 237 W. Gladys St. W. Gladys St.

For the program on the polar region, Mrs. Frank Parrish invited Dr. Lee Fredrickson of Puxico, a scientist now doing research work at Mingo Wildlife Refuge near Puxico.

In 1970, Dr. Fredrickson headed an expedition of scientists to do government research on penguins in Antarctica.

Dr. Fredrickson said penguins tend to mate once a year and usually return to the same nest and the same mate. They are four to five years old before they are able to breed.

The female lays two eggs and turns them over to the care of the male. The male will sit on the nest for 35 days while the female regains her strength at sea.

When the eggs are hatched, the pair takes turns feeding the young until they reach the age of three months and are ready to go to sea.

Included in his collection of slides of penguin habitats were scenes of icebergs, ice-covered mountains, ice caves, seals and other antarctic birds.

Ann Landers

Teen-aged atheist labels God as unneeded crutch

Dear Ann Landers: This is for the girl who had read her little sister's diary and wrote, "Sis and her boyfriend are involved in some very heavy petting. What's even worse, my sister's boyfriend does not believe in God."

I am a 16-year-old atheist and I'm not ashamed of it. Atheism is not evil, nor is it immoral, it's just another way of thinking. Some of my best friends are either atheists or they seriously doubt the existence of God. I did not choose them as friends because of this common bond. They are decent, honest people. They don't use drugs, and they've never been in trouble with the police.

Atheists do not want or need help in becoming Christians. I feel God is just a crutch, and even though He is comforting to others I cannot use Him.

Please print this letter, Ann. I've never seen anything in your column about atheists and I think it's about time.--Not Ashamed

Dear Not Ashamed: I respect your right to be an atheist, but I would not be surprised if you changed your mind by the time you reached adulthood. Sixteen is a tender age to make such a big decision.

You say, "God is just a crutch and you cannot use Him." None of us knows when we will break a leg and need not one crutch--but two.

Speaking strictly for myself, I can't imagine excluding God from my life. I need all the help I can get. So do you, dear, but you don't know it--yet.

Dear Ann Landers: Here is my bit of Monday-morning quarterbacking for some young guys out there who are playing some pretty risky games without knowing the turf, the score, or the league. I learned the hard way.

If you don't want children, don't order any. Sounds crazy? Well, get smart. There are from 500 million to two billion sperm in a single male ejaculation.

When you go to bed with a girl, if she is anywhere from 13 to 42, the order might be filled. Never mind what SHE says about the precautions she has taken. She could be lying, uninformed or just plain mistaken. The result may be an unexpected, ill-timed, loveless marriage. I know because--I Happened To Me

Dear You: It has also happened to millions of others. Thank you for putting it into a few crisp, well-chosen words. (Are you listening, students?)

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago, a woman entered my husband's life and caused me no end of grief. She took my husband away. I was so full of hate I spent almost every waking hour wishing she was dead. I really believed that if I wished hard enough, it would happen.

Within seven months that woman died of a broken blood vessel in her head. They called it an aneurysm. She had never been sick a day in her life. It was totally unexpected.

My husband came back to me and I accepted him. It wasn't easy, but we were able to make a go of it. Then, six months later, my beloved brother dropped dead of the very same thing. Now I am so filled with guilt I am miserable. I think God is paying me back. Please say something to help.--Wretched And Grieving

Dear Friend: God doesn't "pay people back." Both deaths were a coincidence. Your wishing the woman dead had nothing to do with her dying. Your brother's fatal aneurysm would have occurred regardless.

I suggest counseling--either by your clergyman or a therapist. You must get this monkey off your back or you'll crack up. Get Going.

Got those wedding bell blues over costs. . .guest list. . .what to wear. . .and other details? Ann Landers's completely new "The Bride's Guide" will help. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

At Wit's End By Erma Bombeck

Last Friday, I opened the door and there stood Frank and Martha looking like an ad for Pepto-Bismol.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "You both look miserable."

Martha opened her handbag and shoved a letter at me. "We got this today from Pam."

"Pam? Your college senior? Wrote you a letter? It's the first one she's written since she's been to college, isn't it?"

"There was one," said Martha. "Remember when we hadn't heard from her in two years and Frank got annoyed and sent a letter with a note saying, 'Did you get the check I enclosed in the last letter for $200?'" I nodded. "Well, she sent back a letter right away and asked, 'What two hundred dollars?'"

"They don't like cheap tricks," I said shaking my head.

"I know. It wasn't the warmest letter in the world. It was addressed to 'Occupant.'"

"We're worried sick," said Frank. "College kids never write their parents unless they have something to hide. You know Dick Frack who lives down the street from us? The guy with acute tennis elbow."

"I didn't know Dick played tennis."

"He doesn't. It's from writing too many checks with a sloppy grip on his ballpoint. Anyway, he has three daughters in college. He never gets any mail. How do you think I'm going to feel when Dick asks, 'Did you hear from your daugher lately?'"

"What do you suppose is in the letter?" asked Martha.

"You mean you haven't opened it? Give it to me. Well, she can't be too far out. She only put a three-cent stamp on it and there's seven cents due."

They brightened as aI slit open the letter

"Dear Mom and Dad," I read.

"I don't like it," interrupted Martha, "She hasn't called us anything but Martha and Fred since high school."

"Doin't get too depressed," I said. "She misspelled Mom." To continue. "I am enrolled in a creative writing class this semester and teacher assigned us to write our parents. Love, Pam."

They both sat there staring into space. "First a letter home," said Frank. "Then completing an assignment. Next thing you know she'll be going to class regularly, doing her laundry each week, making her bed each day, getting enough sleep, graduating and getting a job. I say when education starts to interfere with college it's time to come home."

Miss America labeled outmoded

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In 1960 at Atlantic City, dazzling Nancy Fleming told Bert Parks "a woman's place is in the home," showed off her sewing, then went on to be crowned "Miss America." She was queen of the country's beauties.

Now — two children and a divorce later — television talk show hostess Nancy Fleming says the pageant which thrust her into the nation's eye perpetuates an outmoded concept of women.

"Miss America is not a real person," she said in a recent interview. "She's something that happens every year.

PEMBERTON, Minn.--Miss Mealnie Jan Bluhm and Donald Lloyd Hoppe exchanged wedding vows Jan. 13 in a double-ring ceremony at Meds Lutheran Church in Mapleton. The Rev. Donald Larson officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thane Bluhm of Pemberton, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lloyd Hoppe of Sikeston, Mo., Route Two.

The bride wore a gown of ivory sata peau fashioned with Cluny lace. The bodice formed a natural waistline. Venise lace accented the bodice, neckline and bishop sleeves. She wore a chapel-length train.

Mrs. David Manthe was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Marilee Lukow and Mrs. Terry Traynor.

Kathy Hoppe of Sikeston was flower girl. Mrs. Dennis Hoppe of Sikeston and Mrs. Collin Bluhm of Pemberton were the bride's personal attendants.

Dennis Hoppe of Sikeston was best man. Groomsmen were Randall Bluhm of Pemberton and Richard Hoppe of Indianapolis, Ind.

Ushers were Collin Bluhm of Pemberton and Richard Kopesky of Waldorf. Jason Manthe was ringbearer.

After the ceremony, a dinner was held at the Inn Towne in Mankato.

Hoppe is a pilot for Ag-Air, Inc. in Sikeston, and the couple lives at 107 Turner St., Sikeston.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger K. Hamm

Miss Gaines is bride of Hamm

ORAN — Miss Martha Jane Gaines of Oran and Roger Keith Hamm of Chaffee were united in marriage Jan. 11 in a double-ring ceremony at Guardian Angel Catholic Church. The Rev. Richard Rolwing officiated, assisted by the Rev. Michael McDevitt.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Gaines of Oran, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hamm of Illmo.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal gown of white sata peau and Alencon lace. The gown featured a fitted bodice and high Mandarin collar, both overlaid with lace, and long, fitted, lace sleeves. The contour skirt with a built-in chapel train was softly gathered at the waist. The hemline was accepted by a wide border of lace.

The fingertip veil was edged with lace and attached to a lace and pearl Camelot cap. She carried a cascade of white carnations.

White, peach, yellow and blue chrysanthemums decorated the church. Kathy Moore of Chaffee was organist.

Acolytes were Andrew Gaines, brother of the bride, and Marty Priggel. DavidEftink of Scott City was lector.

Donna Gaines, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Kenneth L. Sallman Jr. and Betty Gaines, sisters of the bride.

They wore formal gowns of polyester crepe styled with a flower and dot design in peach, yellow and blue. The dresses featured high stand-up collars, ruffled front bibs, bishop sleeves, wide ruffled hemlines and sashes that tied in the back.

Their headpieces were accented with ribbon streamers matching the colors of their dresses. They carried nosegays of white carnations.

Zackary R. Glueck of Cape Girardeau was best man. Groomsmen were Glen D. Hamm of Illmo, brother of the bridegroom, and Mary Seyer of Oran.

Ushers were Mark E. Hamm of Illmo, brother of the bridegroom, and Mark Eftink of Oran.

Servers were Carol Shaffer and Janet Glastetter of Oran and Cecilia Menz, Mary Beth Diebold and Shirley Essner of Kelso.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Mrs. Hamm is a 1972 graduate of Notre Dame High School in Cape Girardeau and is employed by The Modern Roofing & Sheet Metal Works, Inc. in Scott City.

Hamm, a 1970 graduate of Kelly High School, is employed by Standard Oil Co. in Cape Girardeau.

The couple will live in Chaffee.

One of Supremes lives on welfare

DETROIT (AP) — Florence Ballard thought she was making enough money to last her a lifetime when she was cutting gold record hits with Diana Ross and the Supremes a few years ago. She was wrong.

Today she is 31, broke, has three children and lives on welfare in a flat on Detroit's West Side.

"I've been through so much, been so upset over so many things," she says. "Now I just let things happen. I hope things will turn out all right, but I don't know."

Florence Ballard, Mary Wilson and Diana Ross rose from Detroit's Brewster Housing Project in the early 60s to cut eight gold records in two years. Everything good happened at once.

Then suddenly she was out. Cindy Birdsong replaced her for an appearance at the Hollywood Bowl and she never sang with the Supremes again. Illness and quarrels were rumored.

She claims she received only a weekly allowance from the millions the Supremes were earning. She thought the rest was being invested or held for her. She has suits pending against both Motown Record Co. and her former attorney.

"Singing is the only thing I know how to do," she says. "It's the only thing I really know anything about."

But she hasn't performed since 1967. She spends most of her time these days just sitting in front of the televison in the flat she shares with her mother.

"I wouldn't waste all that talent if I had it," her mother says.

Nobody seems able to explain why she doesn't start singing again, although she has had her share of bad luck. Last month she broke her ankle and now she can take only a few steps at a time.

She seperated long ago from her husband, Tommy Chapman, a Motown employe.

"Going back has occurred to me. I think about it," she says. "But the only way to do it is to start singing and not just sit here thinking about it."

Her mother prods her and says Florence ought to do some commercials.

"Sure, if I lost 40 pounds," she says.

Wymans mark 50th anniversary

ESSEX--Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wyman celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house Dec. 29 at Castor River General Baptist Church.

The event was hosted by their three sons and daughters-in-law; Harold and Shirley Wyman of Clovis, N.M.; Walter and Etta Wyman and Marvin and Marceda Wyman of Essex Route Two and a daughter, Ruth Wynum, who lives at home.

Mrs. Wyman was the former Delina Payne, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bill Payne and has lived in the Essex area all her life. Wyman moved from Wright County at an early age, and is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Orgill Wyman.

They were married at their home on Essex Route One on Dec. 24, 1924, and have lived in the Essex area all their married life. The Wymans have eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Sandra Wyman attended the guest book. Servers were Juanita Wyman, Cathy Wyman, Shirley Wyman and Faye Burnett.

The serving table was laid with a gold cloth. A three-tiered anniversary cake centered the table and was topped with a bride and bridegroom encircled in the letters of a gold number 50. Crystal holders with gold candles and a crystal punch bowl completed the table setting.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyman's flowers were white carnations.

Out-of-town guest included: Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wyman and son of DeSoto; Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Cravens, Mrs. Ola Cravens and Mrs. Wanda Keith of Hartville; Mr. and Mrs. James Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Payne and Mrs. Margaret Hesselrode and daughter of Fisk; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Payne, Mrs. Eva Dowdy, Mrs. Fay Burnett and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Miller of Dexter; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Cravens of Parma; Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Condict and children of Memphis, Tenn.; and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Keasler of Dexter.

Denny is a graduate of Republic High School and also is employed at L. E. Cox Medical Center as a respiratory therapist.

A March 22 wedding is planned.

Food habits start with child's birth

Food habits begin to form almost as a child is born. Desirable attitudes and habits developed in early and elementary school years will benefit boys and girls during adolescence and later as adults. So start training your children early to lifetime good eating habits.

Riboflavin (which used to be called vitamin B2) aids the utilization of oxygen. It also helps keep our vision clear and prevents scaly skin around the nose and mouth and cracking at the corners of our mouths. Food that give you riboflavin include dairy products, meats, fish, poultry, and eggs.

How old is man's knowledge of nutrition? As early as 1900 B.C., Egyptians concluded that diet might be involved in night blindness. To correct the problem, Egyptian doctors recommended raw liver, which we now know is rich in vitamin A. Other good sources include dairy products, egg, yolk, dark green and deep yellow vegetables, also deep yellow fruits.

Studies show that many obese people don't eat any more than people who are not overweight. But the overweight people are less active physically. It's the balance between the food energy you consume and the activity energy you put out that matters. If you eat too much or exercise too little for the amount you eat, you'll be overweight.

Nutrition really means the teamwork of various nutrients. For instance, vitamin D in milk helps build calcium and phosphorus into bones. Iron combines with protein to make hemoglobin, a component of red blood cells. For nutrition, no one food can do the job. That's why we urge foods from all four food groups for best eating.

Attention Club Officers

To update the club calendar, I would like the club president or publicity chairman of any women's club or organization pertaining to women's activities in the Sikeston area to send in a list of regularly scheduled meetings. Please include the time, place, hostess and program, if any, for each meeting.

In addition, please include a current list of club officers, their addresses and telephone numbers. Also indicate the date when new officers are to be installed.

The Daily Standard appreciates any black and white photos properly identified of club happenings and also important news events.

Good coverage of club news depends on cooperation.

Card pitcher signs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A pitche who led the St. Louis Cardinals in victories and topped the team's starters in earned run average has signed his 1975 contract, the club announced Wednesday.

Right-hander Lynn McGlothen, who posted a team-leading 16-12 record in 1974, and infielder Ron Hunt were the most recent players to sign with the Red Birds.

McGlothen, 24, who was obtained by the Cardinals from the Boston Red Sox, boasted an earned run average of 2.70 during his first National League season.

Hunt, 33, owns major league records for being hit by pitches at 50 for one season set in 1971 and 243 for his 12-season career. He was acquired by the Cards on waivers last September from the Montreal Expos.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Mary A. Prentiss, one of the nation's top senior women tennis players, has died at her home following an extended illness. She was 58.

Mrs. Prentiss, who won 30 national tennis titles from 1957-72, including 12 national public parks singles titles and seven national public parks doubles titles, died on Sunday.

She is survived by her husband Raymond, three daughters, a son and a brother.

Burial will be in Redlands, Calif.

Indians hope for home court magic

CAPE GIRARDEAU — There's no place like home! That's what the Southeast Missouri State University basketball Indians are thinking as they prepare for tonight's encounter with Delta Sate University of Cleveland, Miss.

The contest -- first of four straight at home -- will begin at 8 p.m. in Houck Field House.

Coach Bob Cradic's club, after losing its fourth consecutive road game on Monday night to Lincoln University, now has an 8-7 overall record and a 2-4 MIAA mark.

All of the Indian losses have come on the road. Five of the victories came on the home court and three were notched on a neutral floor.

Delta State, which is having a so-so year after a 5-21 record last season, has one of the teams which has beaten the Indians. Laving the Houck Field Houes reservation on Dec. 10, the Indians lost 78-71 to the Mississippi university. It was a game the Indian coaches felt they should have won.

Delta State boasts five players averaging in double figures. TheStatesmen are led by Ralph Moore, a 6-5 sophomore from McComb, Miss., who is hitting around 15 points a game. Moore is also the Statesmen's leading rebounder.

Southeast Missouri State is paced in scoring by 6-6 senior Steve Valli of St. Louis. Joe Cagle, a 6-0 sophomore from Caruthrsville, and Mark Baker , a 6-1 senior from New Madrid, are also hitting in double figures.

Overall, however, the Indians, who had some excellent shooting nights earlier in the season, have been in a slump the last two weeks and their shooting has usually been less than 40 per cent from the field. Their accuracy from the free throw line has not been much better.

The Tribe is still without the services of its "big man," 6-7, Arvin Haynes, of Bayless. Haynes has not played since sustaining a severe ankle injury on Jan. 4.

Following tonight's game, Southeast Missouri Sate will entertain the University of Missouri – Rolla on Saturday night, Lincoln Unniversity on Monday night and Arkansas State University on Wednesday night.

Like Delta State, these three teams have each beaten the Tribe on their home courts.

Lilbourn downs Pirates

MATTHEWS — The Daily Standard's top-ranked Lilbourn Panthers let Parma toy with the grandiose idea of "Major Upset" here Wednesday night in the New Madrid County Tournament before putting the skids under the Pirates 65-58.

Just minutes earlier, the Junior Varsity Panthers had enjoyed a breather against Gideon in "B" division play with a 73-65 "it'wasn't-that-close" victory.

In the varsity contest, Lilbourn jumped to a 20-9 margin in the opening frame against Parma before the Pirate defense could find the shut-off valve. But it was all Parma in the middle two quarters as the Pirates countered with a 35-25 margin that almost scuttled Lilbourn's Championship hopes in the tourney and a 27-game victory streak. The Panthers couldn't get more than three points up on Parma during the final frame and with only 48 seconds left on the clock, the Pirates had cut Lilbourn's lead back down to one again at 59-58. And it was here, where the name of the game is "pressure", that Lilbourn showed everybody why they are THE top team. Ernest McFerren of LHS was fouled and sank both shots to give Lilbourn a three point edge again. That forced Parms to really press and the Panthers spent the rest of the game at the free throw line to claim the final margin of victory. Frankie Robinson took high honors on the game for Lilbourn with 20, followed by McFerren and Boyd with 14 each. Steve Gibson was the ramrod for Parma with 25 with teammates Ramsey and Barnes chipping in with 14 apiece.

The junior Panthers ran up a 55-41 margin by the third quarter in the "b" Division game of the Tournament last night, and then let subs clock out the final victory over Gideon 73-65. Riggs finished high for Lilbourn with 20, while Gideon's Pipkins outshot everybody with 31.

MERRIFIELD, Va. — Top-seeded Chris Evert defeated Raquel Giscatre 6-3, 6-2 to advance to the second round of the $75,000 Women's Professional Tennis Tournament.

14 players selected from Southern Cal

NEW YORK (AP) — It started with excitement and anticipation when Atlanta selected quarterback Steve Bartkowski as the No. 1 choice in the National Football League's 40th annual collegiate draft.

It ended with a whimper, 20 hours, 58 minutes later with crumpled coffee cups as weary club representatives recorded Pittsburgh's selection of Nebraska guard Stan Hegener as the 442nd and final choice in the 1974 draft.

In between there were two days of drafting, 17 rounds, a number of important trades, and always the ominous shadow of Judge William T. Sweigert's remark that the whole exercise was "illegal and unreasonable."

Judge Sweigert delivered that opinion last month in his decision on Joe Kapp's suit against the NFL. Commissioner Pete Rozelle might have had that in mind when he began the draft by saying, "Order in the court."

By the time the draft had reached its conclusion, Southern California had set a record with 14 players selected, one more than the number picked from Ohio State. Nebraska was next with 12 picks followed by Maryland's 11 and 10 each by Oklahoma, Penn State and Notre Dame.

There were 244 offensive players chosen, 186 defensive selections and 12 punters or place kickers. Runners were the most prominent picks with 75 selected followed by 66 defensive backs, 54 linebackers and 48 wide receivers.

Bartkowski's selection by Atlanta came as the result of one of 18 trades involving established players. The Falcons had surrendered tackle George Kunz to Baltimore for the draft's No. 1 selection.

In later deals, New Orleans swapped defensive end Billy Newsome to the New York Jets for their No. 1 choice, and Chicago picked up running back Cid Edwards from San Diego and tight end Greg Latta, a World Football League player who belonged to Baltimore, in exchange for a pair of third-round picks.

Washington, which doesn't care much for draft picks anyway, swapped a couple of them to Baltimore for guard Glen Ressler and wide receiver Cotton Speyrer. New England acquired running back Leon Crosswhite from Detroit and sent wide receiver Reggie Rucker to Cleveland in deals involving draft picks.

What it all came down to was a body count, especially after the first seven rounds which were completed on Wednesday. Even the 500 or so exuberant fans who had packed the gallery on Wednesday to watch the early selections, seemed to sense that. Only a couple of dozen were on hand for the final rounds.

Among the best-known names selected Wednesday were wide receiver J. K. McKay, son of Southern California Coach John McKay, who was picked by Cleveland in the draft's 16th round and Pete Demmerle, Notre Dame's All American wide receiver, who was chosen in the 13th round by San Diego.

Advance Hornets buzz Wildcats

BLOOMFIELD — The Advance Hornets lived up to their name and then some Wednesday night by buzz-bombing the host Bloomfield Wildcats 102-41 in Stoddard County Tournament action. That was the only "A" contest of the evening as Bernie took Advance 62-49 and Puxico edged Bloomfield 44-41 in "B" division play.

The Advance varsity rolled up a 25-10 first quarter against Bloomfield and kept pouring it on thru the finale. The shellshocked Wildcats were out of it from the opening tip, with four Hornets winding up in double figures, led by Steve Tropf's 24. Bloomfield's top efforts came from Jackson and Laferty with 8 each.

The Junior Wildcats made it more of a game in "B" division play against Puxico before succumbing to the double wipe-out 44-41. The Indians parlayed the middle two quarters and a 26-17 advantage for the win with Campbell leading the way with 13 markers. Barnes finished high for Bloomfield with 14.

Bernie took every quarter from the JV Hornets to prevent Advance from sweeping the night's action as the Mules ran to a62-49 win. Pointer was high for BHS with 20, while Steve Vavak had 22 in a losing effort for the Hornets.

Card pitcher signs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A pitche who led the St. Louis Cardinals in victories and topped the team's starters in earned run average has signed his 1975 contract, the club announced Wednesday.

Right-hander Lynn McGlothen, who posted a team-leading 16-12 record in 1974, and infielder Ron Hunt were the most recent players to sign with the Red Birds.

McGlothen, 24, who was obtained by the Cardinals from the Boston Red Sox, boasted an earned run average of 2.70 during his first National League season.

Hunt, 33, owns major league records for being hit by pitches at 50 for one season set in 1971 and 243 for his 12-season career. He was acquired by the Cards on waivers last September from the Montreal Expos.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Mary A. Prentiss, one of the nation's top senior women tennis players, has died at her home following an extended illness. She was 58.

Mrs. Prentiss, who won 30 national tennis titles from 1957-72, including 12 national public parks singles titles and seven national public parks doubles titles, died on Sunday.

She is survived by her husband Raymond, three daughters, a son and a brother.

Burial will be in Redlands, Calif.

Indians hope for home court magic

CAPE GIRARDEAU — There's no place like home! That's what the Southeast Missouri State University basketball Indians are thinking as they prepare for tonight's encounter with Delta Sate University of Cleveland, Miss.

The contest -- first of four straight at home -- will begin at 8 p.m. in Houck Field House.

Coach Bob Cradic's club, after losing its fourth consecutive road game on Monday night to Lincoln University, now has an 8-7 overall record and a 2-4 MIAA mark.

All of the Indian losses have come on the road. Five of the victories came on the home court and three were notched on a neutral floor.

Delta State, which is having a so-so year after a 5-21 record last season, has one of the teams which has beaten the Indians. Laving the Houck Field Houes reservation on Dec. 10, the Indians lost 78-71 to the Mississippi university. It was a game the Indian coaches felt they should have won.

Delta State boasts five players averaging in double figures. TheStatesmen are led by Ralph Moore, a 6-5 sophomore from McComb, Miss., who is hitting around 15 points a game. Moore is also the Statesmen's leading rebounder.

Southeast Missouri State is paced in scoring by 6-6 senior Steve Valli of St. Louis. Joe Cagle, a 6-0 sophomore from Caruthrsville, and Mark Baker , a 6-1 senior from New Madrid, are also hitting in double figures.

Overall, however, the Indians, who had some excellent shooting nights earlier in the season, have been in a slump the last two weeks and their shooting has usually been less than 40 per cent from the field. Their accuracy from the free throw line has not been much better.

The Tribe is still without the services of its "big man," 6-7, Arvin Haynes, of Bayless. Haynes has not played since sustaining a severe ankle injury on Jan. 4.

Following tonight's game, Southeast Missouri Sate will entertain the University of Missouri -- Rolla on Saturday night, Lincoln Unniversity on Monday night and Arkansas State University on Wednesday night.

Like Delta State, these three teams have each beaten the Tribe on their home courts.

Lilbourn downs Pirates

MATTHEWS — The Daily Standard's top-ranked Lilbourn Panthers let Parma toy with the grandiose idea of "Major Upset" here Wednesday night in the New Madrid County Tournament before putting the skids under the Pirates 65-58.

Just minutes earlier, the Junior Varsity Panthers had enjoyed a breather against Gideon in "B" division play with a 73-65 "it'wasn't-that-close" victory.

In the varsity contest, Lilbourn jumped to a 20-9 margin in the opening frame against Parma before the Pirate defense could find the shut-off valve. But it was all Parma in the middle two quarters as the Pirates countered with a 35-25 margin that almost scuttled Lilbourn's Championship hopes in the tourney and a 27-game victory streak. Baseball regulations announced

NEW YORK (AP) — Relief pitchers must finish a game in order to qualify for a "save," according to new baseball rules announced today.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn also announced that the Official Playing Rules Committee has approved new regulations dealing with specifications for bats and for errant throws by a pitcher which end up out of play.

Proposed by the Baseball Writers' Association of America, the new pitching rule now requires relief hurlers to qualify under three categories in order to get credit for a save.

The rule stipulates that a relief pitcher is credited with a save when he is the finishing pitcher in a game won by his team and is not the winning pitcher.

He also must enter the game with a lead of no more than three runs and pitch for at least one inning; or enter the game with the potential tying run either on base, at bat or on deck; or he pitches effectively for at least three innings.

Prior to now, it was possible for more than one pitcher to qualify under the previous provisions. If that happened, the scorer was to credit the save to the pitcher he judged to have been the most effective, or not to credit a save at all.

The new bat specifications were caused by some players using a "cupped" bat — one with an indentation on the thick end. At its annual convention in December, baseball approved legislation to eject from the game and give a three-day suspension to any player using an illegally filled or doctored bat.

Another rule strengthened in the December meeting directs umpires to eject any pitcher who is found to have a foreign substance on him or in his possession. The previous rule had allowed for a warning prior to ejection.

The other rule clarification just approved allows a runner or batter-runner to advance two bases if a ball pitched to the batter or thrown by the pitcher from the rubber to a base "remains on the playing field, and is subsequently kicked or deflected into the dugout, stands or other area where the ball is dead."

Western Kentucky upsets LaSalle

The home court advantage was no advantage for the LaSalle basketball team Wednesday night. And the officials were no help, either.

The home town fans didn't especially inspire the nation's seventh-ranked club and the referees burdened the Explorers with a load of costly fouls.

The result was a 91-87 upset victory by unheralded Western Kentucky.

"At times we seemed ready to blow it open, but Western Kentucky kept hanging in and hanging in," said LaSalle Coach Paul Westhead. "We couldn't put them away."

The Explorers, an impossible team to beat at home this season, had an 11-point lead with less than seven minutes left. But three of their starters were saddled with four fouls each — and Hilltopper star Mike Odemns took advantage of the situation at the end.

The 6-foot-5, 235-pound brute barged inside for many of his game-leading 33 points to help the Hilltoppers get off the floor and knock out the heavily-favored home team.

"Undoubtedly some of the fouls hurt us," said Westhead.

With LaSalle's Joe Bryant, Donn Wilber and Billy Taylor in foul trouble, Odemns was clearly the difference between the teams. He not only connected on 14 of 18 shots from the field but picked off 13 rebounds.

In other college basketball games, 10th-ranked North Carolina whipped Wake Forest 101-91; No. 13 Marquette stopped Xavier 73-55 and No. 20 Kansas breezed past Colorado 81-59.

LaSalle's 11-game winning streak went out the window when Wilson James scored a field goal with 1:13 remaining to send Western Kentucky ahead 87-85. Odemns scored with 25 seconds to go, but LaSalle's Charlie Wise came right back to cut the margin to two again with 16 seconds left.

LaSalle, which was up 46-38 at halftime, was led by Taylor and Bryant, each with 22 points.

Brad Hoffman hit a career high of 21 points and Mitch Kupchak also scored 21 to lead North Carolina over Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. Hoffman scored 15 of his points during the second half as the Tar Heels pulled away after twice trailing by seven points in the first half. The Tar Heels had a 49-48 edge at the half.

Lloyd Walton sparked a late first-half spurt and finished with 20 points to lead Marquette over Xavier. Walton scored six points in the final four minutes of the first half when the Warriors, 12-3, snapped a 26-26 tie and pulled to a 10-point halftime lead.

The Jayhawks coasted to a 49-31 halftime lead and enjoyed several 30-point advantages down the stretch. Kansas made liberal use of substitutions. Kansas' Dale Greenlee added 15 points, and Danny Knight had 10. Greg Mueller was high for Colorado with 14 and Brad Hunt had 13.

Elsewhere, Southern Illinois clobbered Illinois State 91-61 behind Mike Glenn's career-high 29 points. The Southern Illinois guard, called the best at the school since Walt Frazier played there several years ago, helped the Salukis pull away frdm a 32-32 halftime tie.

Bell City downs highway department

VANDUSER — In the Vanduser Independent Invitational Tourney last night, it was Bell City over Sikeston Highway Dept. 81-64, and the Central Cougars turning back Alberson Farms 79-47.

Jim Bell's 16 markers and Steve Tropf's 15 led Bell City to the victory in a loser's bracket game. Roger Miller was high for the Highway crew with 21.

In a winner's bracket game, Scott Central's basketball coach, Ron Cookson, practiced what he preaches by leading the Central Cougars to the win with 26 markers. Gary Peet backed him up with 25. Coley Taylor was the top effort for Alberson Farms with 16.

The Independent Tourney continues tonight as Alberson Farms goes against Sikeston Hospital, the Central Cougars meet First National Bank, and the Vanduser Gas-Pumps take on Sikeston KSIM. Championship and Consolation match-ups are set for Saturday night at the Vanduser Gym starting at 6 p.m.

Oklahoma player may be sleeper of NFL draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The sleeper of the National Football League draft may be a young giant who hasn't played serious college football in two years but still was good enough to make an all-star post-season game last month.

He's John Carroll of Oklahoma, a 6-foot-5, 220-pounder who "probably would have been our starting wide receiver but for a knee injury," according to Coach Barry Switzer of the national champions.

Carroll, a blue-chipper until he hurt his knee two years ago, was drafted in the sixth round by the San Diego Chargers. Except for doing Oklahoma's punting and a little placekicking, he only appeared in two games last fall as a wide receiver and didn't catch a pass.

"We were just blowing people out when I got in and we didn't really want to score," he said.

But Carroll impressed the scouts in the Blue-Gray Game, catching several passes and doing the punting and placekicking.

"I think I can make it with the Chargers," he said. "All I know is I'm the first wide receiver they took."

Switzer agrees.

"He's a great athlete," the coach said. "He was also a great basketball player and a great track man. Not many guys his size have his kind of speed. He runs a consistent 4.7 forty and he's done 4.6. I think he can be a pro tight end as well as a wide receiver."

Carroll played split end on a team that didn't throw much in 1972, catching 17 passes for 343 yards and three touchdowns. He hurt his knee in the second game of the season but continued to play until the next-to-last game, when he reinjured it and required surgery.

The previous year, he led the nation in kick scoring with 80 points on 53 conversions and nine field goals and booted a 53-yarder against Auburn in the Sugar Bowl.

In the spring of '73, Oklahoma needed a tight end so Carroll, an all-around athlete, was tried there.

"My knee injury really wasn't that serious, but it didn't have a chance to heal," he said. "It was only a cartilage, not a ligament. I'm okay now."

Unfortunately for Carroll, while he was sidelined, Tinker Owens and Billy Brooks, both exceptional receivers, moved ahead of him.

"I told the coaches I was healthy," he said, "but Owens and Brooks were established and they could do the job. I'm just glad they let me punt."

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Nick Libett of the Detroit Red Wings didn't get much rest after the National Hockey League team's arrival from St. Louis at 2 a.m. Wednesday — but he's not complaining.

When the veteran forward got home, his wife Jackie was suffering labor pains. He drove her to Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak and at 6 a.m. she delivered a nine-pound, one-ounce boy.

It is the first boy for the couple, who also have a daughter.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians' General Manager Phil Seghi announced that he signed six more Cleveland Indians to their 1975 baseball contracts Wednesday.

Twenty-three of the 38 players on the roster have now signed.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Refunds due Cleveland Browns' 1971 season ticket holders under the government's Phase 1 price freeze regulations of that year have been mailed out, the Browns announced Wednesday.

The refund involves the preseason doubleheader and the first five regular season games of 1971 through Oct. 31.

Purchasers of single game tickets for the six games, who kept their ticket stubs may secure refunds by mailing their ticket stubs with a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Browns.

Basketball race narrows

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight Conference basketball race appears to be narrowing down to a battle between Nebraska, Kansas State and Kansas.

Missouri, too, might have something to say about matters even though the Tigers are young and green.

All four teams won Wednesday night, Nebraska keeping its league record unblemished in four starts with a 73-58 home court triumph over Oklahoma State.

Red-hot Kansas State ran its record to 3-1 by outscoring the Cyclones at Iowa State 108-93, and defending champion, Kansas, ranked No. 20 nationally, humiliated Colorado 81-50, giving the Jayhawks a 3-1 mark.

Missouri, 2-2, traveled to Oklahoma and came away with a 77-66 triumph over the slumping Sooners.

Jerry Fort made 20 points for the victorious Cornhuskers and Ronnie Daniel 19 for the Cowboys. Nebraska shot a fancy 64.7 per cent from the floor.

Kansas State's crack guards, Chuckie Williams and Mike Evans, combined for 54 points in the Wildcats' conquest of the Cyclone, 1-3. K-State never trailed, piling up a 10-2 advantage in the first three minutes.

All five Wildcat starters wound up in double figures, the leader, Williams with 34 points. Hercle Ivy, the best the Cyclones have to offer, popped in 30.

Kansas, playing at home, handed the Buffs, 0-4, their 10th consecutive defeat. At times, the Jayhaws led by 30 points and kept substitutes flowing into the action.

Donnie Von Moore was high scorer for Kansas and the game with 17 points. Greg Mueller sank 14 for Colorado.

Oklahoma, 1-3, after trailing 38-26 at the half, tied the game with Missouri at 50-50 and 52-52 before the Tigers clicked for seven consecutive points, four by Jeff Currie.

The difference was in free throws, missouri connecting on 25 of 35 and the Sooners on four of seven. Currie and William Smith each contributed 17 points for Missouri. As usual, Alvan Adams topped Oklahoma with 24.

Baseball regulations announced

NEW YORK (AP) — Relief pitchers must finish a game in order to qualify for a "save," according to new baseball rules announced today.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn also announced that the Official Playing Rules Committee has approved new regulations dealing with specifications for bats and for errant throws by a pitcher which end up out of play.

Proposed by the Baseball Writers' Association of America, the new pitching rule now requires relief hurlers to qualify under three categories in order to get credit for a save.

The rule stipulates that a relief pitcher is credited with a save when he is the finishing pitcher in a game won by his team and is not the winning pitcher.

He also must enter the game with a lead of no more than three runs and pitch for at least one inning; or enter the game with the potential tying run either on base, at bat or on deck; or he pitches effectively for at least three innings.

Prior to now, it was possible for more than one pitcher to qualify under the previous provisions. If that happened, the scorer was to credit the save to the pitcher he judged to have been the most effective, or not to credit a save at all.

The new bat specifications were caused by some players using a "cupped" bat — one with an indentation on the thick end. At its annual convention in December, baseball approved legislation to eject from the game and give a three-day suspension to any player using an illegally filled or doctored bat.

Another rule strengthened in the December meeting directs umpires to eject any pitcher who is found to have a foreign substance on him or in his possession. The previous rule had allowed for a warning prior to ejection.

The other rule clarification just approved allows a runner or batter-runner to advance two bases if a ball pitched to the batter or thrown by the pitcher from the rubber to a base "remains on the playing field, and is subsequently kicked or deflected into the dugout, stands or other area where the ball is dead."

Western Kentucky upsets LaSalle

The home court advantage was no advantage for the LaSalle basketball team Wednesday night. And the officials were no help, either.

The home town fans didn't especially inspire the nation's seventh-ranked club and the referees burdened the Explorers with a load of costly fouls.

The result was a 91-87 upset victory by unheralded Western Kentucky.

"At times we seemed ready to blow it open, but Western Kentucky kept hanging in and hanging in," said LaSalle Coach Paul Westhead. "We couldn't put them away."

The Explorers, an impossible team to beat at home this season, had an 11-point lead with less than seven minutes left. But three of their starters were saddled with four fouls each — and Hilltopper star Mike Odemns took advantage of the situation at the end.

The 6-foot-5, 235-pound brute barged inside for many of his game-leading 33 points to help the Hilltoppers get off the floor and knock out the heavily-favored home team.

"Undoubtedly some of the fouls hurt us," said Westhead.

With LaSalle's Joe Bryant, Donn Wilber and Billy Taylor in foul trouble, Odemns was clearly the difference between the teams. He not only connected on 14 of 18 shots from the field but picked off 13 rebounds.

In other college basketball games, 10th-ranked North Carolina whipped Wake Forest 101-91; No. 13 Marquette stopped Xavier 73-55 and No. 20 Kansas breezed past Colorado 81-59.

LaSalle's 11-game winning streak went out the window when Wilson James scored a field goal with 1:13 remaining to send Western Kentucky ahead 87-85. Odemns scored with 25 seconds to go, but LaSalle's Charlie Wise came right back to cut the margin to two again with 16 seconds left.

LaSalle, which was up 46-38 at halftime, was led by Taylor and Bryant, each with 22 points.

Brad Hoffman hit a career high of 21 points and Mitch Kupchak also scored 21 to lead North Carolina over Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. Hoffman scored 15 of his points during the second half as the Tar Heels pulled away after twice trailing by seven points in the first half. The Tar Heels had a 49-48 edge at the half.

Lloyd Walton sparked a late first-half spurt and finished with 20 points to lead Marquette over Xavier. Walton scored six points in the final four minutes of the first half when the Warriors, 12-3, snapped a 26-26 tie and pulled to a 10-point halftime lead.

The Jayhawks coasted to a 49-31 halftime lead and enjoyed several 30-point advantages down the stretch. Kansas made liberal use of substitutions. Kansas' Dale Greenlee added 15 points, and Danny Knight had 10. Greg Mueller was high for Colorado with 14 and Brad Hunt had 13.

The new signers were outfielders John Lowenstein and John Jeter and pitchers Tom Buskey, Bruce Ellingsen, Eric Raich and Bob Grossman.

Twenty-three of the 38 players on the roster have now signed.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Refunds due Cleveland Browns' 1971 season ticket holders under the government's Phase 1 price freeze regulations of that year have been mailed out, the Browns announced Wednesday.

The refund involves the preseason doubleheader and the first five regular season games of 1971 through Oct. 31.

Purchasers of single game tickets for the six games, who kept their ticket stubs may secure refunds by mailing their ticket stubs with a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Browns.

Basketball race narrows

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight Conference basketball race appears to be narrowing down to a battle between Nebraska, Kansas State and Kansas.

Missouri, too, might have something to say about matters even though the Tigers are young and green.

All four teams won Wednesday night, Nebraska keeping its league record unblemished in four starts with a 73-58 home court triumph over Oklahoma State.

Red-hot Kansas State ran its record to 3-1 by outscoring the Cyclones at Iowa State 108-93, and defending champion, Kansas, ranked No. 20 nationally, humiliated Colorado 81-50, giving the Jayhawks a 3-1 mark.

Missouri, 2-2, traveled to Oklahoma and came away with a 77-66 triumph over the slumping Sooners.

Jerry Fort made 20 points for the victorious Cornhuskers and Ronnie Daniel 19 for the Cowboys. Nebraska shot a fancy 64.7 per cent from the floor.

Kansas State's crack guards, Chuckie Williams and Mike Evans, combined for 54 points in the Wildcats' conquest of the Cyclone, 1-3. K-State never trailed, piling up a 10-2 advantage in the first three minutes.

All five Wildcat starters wound up in double figures, the leader, Williams with 34 points. Hercle Ivy, the best the Cyclones have to offer, popped in 30.

Kansas, playing at home, handed the Buffs, 0-4, their 10th consecutive defeat. At times, the Jayhaws led by 30 points and kept substitutes flowing into the action.

Donnie Von Moore was high scorer for Kansas and the game with 17 points. Greg Mueller sank 14 for Colorado.

Oklahoma, 1-3, after trailing 38-26 at the half, tied the game with Missouri at 50-50 and 52-52 before the Tigers clicked for seven consecutive points, four by Jeff Currie.

The difference was in free throws, missouri connecting on 25 of 35 and the Sooners on four of seven. Currie and William Smith each contributed 17 points for Missouri. As usual, Alvan Adams topped Oklahoma with 24.

Missouri University to aid government in earth study

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has launched a new satellite to help man better manage the earth's resources and protect its environment.

Landsat-2, formerly called Earth Resources Technology Sattellite or ERTS, was launched into orbit on Jan. 22. It promises to help the United States and many foreign countries solve problems related to agriculture, geology, energy sources, water resources, mapping and several other fields.

Part of the data gathered by this picture-taking satellite will be analyzed at University of Missouri -Columbia, where the university's Atmospheric Science Department is involved in an experiment, in cooperation with several government agencies, known as LACIE (Large Area Crop Inventory Experiment).

LACIE is designed to test new methods of detecting the spread of crop diseases, measuring crop acreage, forecasting crop yields and other practical and useful information by analyzing photographic data gathered by the Landsats.

If the experiment is successful, it is hoped that the new techniques, combined with better weather prediction from satellites, will benefit both the farmer and the consumer by reducing the annual uncertainties affecting the growing and marketing of marketing of major crops.

Among the work to be done at the university's Columbia campus is research on the growing cycle of major grain crops photographed by the satellite to determine the key times in each cycle to best estimate the crop yield. Eventually, data gathered by the satellites will be used to make worldwide yield predictions on such crops as wheat, corn, rice and soybeans.

It could be argued that, with more accurate data on crop production, the United States could have avoided fiascos of the type that led to the massive grain sale to the Soviet Union at the expense of U.S. taxpayers.

Landsat-1 blanketed the entire earth with its cameras every 18 days. Landsat-2 will follow the Landsat-1 orbit with a slight overlap of camera field, which will provide maximum use of computer analysis equipment on the ground.

As the ranking Democratic member of the Senate Committee on Aeronautical and Space Sciences, I have supported this Landsat program.

Former Naylor man dies after deep sea mishap

NEW ORLEANS, La. — John C. Marlin, 41, formerly of Naylor, Mo., died of air embolism Tuesday morning following a deep sea diving accident in the Gulf of Mexico near here.

Marlin injured his hand while doing underwater work for J. Ray McDermott Construction Co. and died in a decompression chamber on a construction barge.

He had been diving for offshore contractors for 16 years.

He was born Jan. 2, 1934 in Naylor to Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Marlin of Poplar Bluff, who survive.

He attended Poplar Bluff High School before entering the Navy in 1950 and served on an underwater demolition team in the submarine service.

On Oct. 9, 1953, he married Patricia Ann Woods, who survives. They moved to New Orleans in 1956. Mrs. Marlin is the daughter of Madge Bennett of Morehouse, Mo.

Other survivors include two sons, John Marlin and Tim Marlin, and one daughter, Pam, all of the home.

Friends may call at Parrent Funeral Home in Naylor from noon until 3 p.m. Friday.

Graveside rites will be conducted at 3 p.m. Friday with the Rev. Bennett Willis officiating.

During man's long history, he found other ways of communicating that had no need of the spoken word. The ancient Greeks spread news by signal fires and American Indians used smoke signals.

Waste management bill comes up for vote

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri legislative committees are preparing to vote on bills revamping the state's solid waste management law, truck weight limits and highway fuel taxes.

Private garbage haulers and residents of several small towns crammed into the Senate Lounge Wednesday to protest the state's control over local garbage collection systems.

The Senate Local Governments Committee heard testimony on a bill that would remove the requirement that cities or counties operate a collection system. It would also allow private haulers to contract individually with customers.

"There's almost open rebellion in Lexington of some people who won't pay their garbage bills," said Art Symond, a Lexington resident who brought a petition with 1,786 signatures opposing the law.

Symond said every Lexington resident was charged $4.25 a month for g arbage collection, a service that is rrequired for city residents under the solid waste law. "They can't put everybody in jail," he said.

Some residents from Dixon and Macon complained that their water bills had been shut off after they refused to pay the garbage fees.

Sen. Emory Melton, R-Cassville, criticized state solid waste officials about the law.

"Why don't you turn this problem over to local people who know how to evaluate their problem?" Melton asked state solid waste chief Robert M. Robinson. "How much expertise do you have to have to take a sack of garbage, put it in a truck and take it to the landfill?"

Robinson said the law does have flexibility in the way people pay for their garbage service. He said residences could be charged based on their numbers of occupants or the amount of water they used monthly.

Kenneth M. Karch, director of the state Division of Environmental Quality, told senators that 250 of the state's 975 cities and 10 of the state's 114 counties have collection systems.

"Isn't it significant that only one-fourth of the cities Have been able to comply with the plan?" Melton asked.

Melton questioned the "flexibility" of the state's regulations "When you apply the same standards to Ozark County with 6,700 people as to St. Louis County."

Before the Senate Roads and Highways Committee, the trucking industry and Teamsters Union spokesmen faced off on truck weight limits.

George Burruss, a spokesman for the Missouri Bus and Truck Association, said added weight would increase efficiency by cutting the number of trucks needed, saving fuel.

But Teamsters spokesman Matt Abboud said the increased weight would make the trucks harder to control and increase the chance of tire blow-outs.

State highway officials also opposed the weight hike, saying the hike would cost taxpayers an extra $26 million a year for road maintenance.

On the gas tax issue, Sen. James Conway, D-St. Louis, called for a state election on a proposed constitutional amendment to allow an additional gas tax to subsidize mass transit.

If the amendment passed, Conway said he would introduce a bill setting a three cent per gallon tax on gas.

Emergency funds bill recommended

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A $51.5 million total emergency appropriations bill including funds to improve pay to prison guards in the state Division of Corrections was recommended by the House Appropriations Committee Wednesday.

The recommendation now sent to the House floor also earmarks $7.1 million in federal revenue sharing money for equipping a proposed optometry school at Weldon Spring to be operated by the University of Missouri.

The committee's recommendation of nearly $196,000 for a one-step pay boost to prison guards followed passage of a House resolution last week calling for funding of more guards in the wake of the stabbing death at the main prison here.

Low pay for prison guards, now set at a starting rate of just over $500 a month, has been cited by prison officials as a major obstacle in recruiting new guards.

Forty guards have been hired since the prison slaying and will be pa id with federal funds.

The allotment for the proposed optometry school is contingent upon the university acquiring the Weldon Spring site from the Atomic Energy Commission at no cost and in an environmentally clean condition. The university must also agree not to dispose of any of its land in the area without legislative approval.

The total committee recommendations, which were set to provide supplemental funding for various state agencies through the end of this fiscal year, were about $2.2 million more than the emergency appropriation recommended by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

But the committee recommendation does not include more than $18.4 million for Aid to Dependent Children payments and supplemental state payments to the blind, aged and disabled. Those bills were taken out of the emergency bill and included in a separate measure, also sent to the full House Wednesday.

In other committee action, the House Committee on Social Services and Medicaid recommended an across the board increase in Aid to Dependent Children payments of $10 per month.

Sale proceeds to aid hospital

CHAFFEE — A rummage sale will be held at 9 a.m. Feb. 22 at the VFW Hall in Chaffee as part of a communitywide effort to raise about $1,600 for an incubator to care for newborn infants at Chaffee General Hospital, Carl Wilkins, administrator of the hospital, has announced.

He said that the hospital presently does not have anything that elaborate and that an incubator would upgrade present equipment.

Household articles, clothing, furniture an any other items anyone wishes to contribute will be sold at the rummage sale, Wilkins said.

Persons who wish to contribute items may contact Annie Essner at phone number 794-2180 orDelores Aubuchon at 887-6278, Wilkins said. Chances for prizes may also be purchased from either of the two or at the hospital.

He said the prizes are on display at the hospital.

The economic situation is one reason money is being raised in this fashion, Wilkins said, but mainly it is to let the people in the community help the hospital.

"The people appreciate the hospital, and this is one way of showing it," he said. "The people of the community want to help. Anything they want to do to help is greatly appreciated."

3 men rob Cape station

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Johnson Shell Service Station, 341 S. Sprigg, was held up by three black men at 11:23 p.m. Wednesday, according to city police.

The robbers fled on foot with an undetermined amount of money taken from the station.

Tank explodes

RIVES — A fire following the explosion of a 1,000 gallon propane gas tank at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday destroyed a five-room frame house located two miles south of this south Dunklin County community.

The house was occupied by Bobby Lee Johnson, who was reported out of the state at the time of the explosion and fire, according to the highway patrol, which investigated.

By The Associated Press

LONDON (AP) — Motorcycle showman Evel Knievel plans a tour of Britain this spring that will start with an appearance at Wembley Stadium here May 26, his agents say. It will be the daredevil's first appearance outside North America.

Last summer, Knievel succeeded in attracting wide attention for an attempt to jump across the Snake River Canyon in Idaho on a rocket-powered device. The jump, however, failed.

Segovia already has two sons — Andres, 53, by a previous marriage, and Carlos, 4.

Segovia, who lives in Madrid, is here for a concert. He says his 37-year-old wife, Emilia, plans to join him next month.

Segovia calls his younger son "the joy of my life." From his wife, he says he is "absorbing youth."

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A spokesman for Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. says Haig has sent the U.S. Treasury a $91 check to compensate the government for transporting Haig's liquor when he moved from Washington last October to become supreme allied commander in Europe.

The spokesman said the liquor was incorrectly sent as household goods without Haig's knowledge. Some vodka and wine were reported to have been crated under the label "glassware."

Last week, a spokesman for Haig said the former White House chief of staff would reimburse the government $46.92 in another irregularity — a special ride from Frankfurt to Stuttgart which Haig's mongrel dog Duncan got in an Army staff car.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government export restrictions on wheat and soybean sales are being relaxed following cancellation of large purchases of U.S. wheat by the Soviet Union and mainland China. Beginning today exporters will be allowed to sell up to 100,000 tons of wheat and soybeans to foreign buyers without prior approval from the Agriculture Department. Since October the limit has been 50,000 tons.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special government study group is investigating atomic power plant safety, a concern highlighted by a Nuclear Regulatory Commission order shutting down 23 plants to check for flaws in a key emergency system. The commission has given the reactor operators 20 days to comply after cracks were found in a 10-inch-diameter pipe at a reactor in Morris, Ill. The order is the second such government move in the last five months.

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Dean III, out of his prison denims for less than a month, begins a Watergate lecture tour Sunday which will earn him at least $175,000 over the next nine weeks. Unlike a similar campus tour planned by former White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, Dean's plans so far have stirred little complaint from those who believe no one should profit from Watergate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James B. Allen, the leading practitioner of the Senate filibuster, is threatening to talk to death a rule change that would weaken his favorite legislative tactic. A proposal by Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and James B. Pearson, R-Kan., would allow a filibuster to be stopped by a three-fifths majority of those voting instead of the present two-thirds. The rule change is expected to come to the Senate floor soon.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Al Ullman is urging his House Ways and Means Committee to approve a tax-cut bill by next week as President Ford indicates some flexibility in dealing with Congress on tax reductions to boost the slumping economy. But Ullman says his meeting Wednesday with Ford failed to break the impasse on Ford's oil import tax program. The tariff hike, opposed by most congressional Democrats, goes into effect Saturday.

AP National Roundup

DETROIT (AP) — Some financial analysts say the nation's slumping auto industry, traditionally among the most profitable in the world, may be operating in the red for the first time. Investment counselors for several large banks and brokerage houses predict that together the four major auto companies probably will lose money in the first quarter of 1975. A half-dozen analysts surveyed by The Associated Press said they could not recall the industry as a whole reporting net losses in a quarter before, and certainly never in a nonstrike period.

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Sugar warehouses across the nation are full and sales have been so slow some refineries have been forced to shut down. It is a sharp comedown for sugar, which rose 400 per cent in price last year to join oil as a symbol of shortage and inflation. Raw sugar has fallen $24 since it topped out at $64.50 per 100 pounds last Nov. 20. The world's largest refinery, the C&H plant in San Francisco, called a five-day layoff.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Elvis Presley, who reportedly is concerned about a weight problem, has been hospitalized for what is described as several days of tests. Maurice Elliott, vice president of Memphis Baptist Hospital, said details on tests or treatments planned for Presley were not known.

PROBATE COURT

BENTON — Cases presented before Judge John Sides in Scott County Probate Court last week included:

Lora Edna Inman, deceased: Probate of will.

Norman Roy Clevlen presented to the court an instrument in writing purporting to be the last will and testament of deceased. The court declared it to be the last will and testament and admitted it to probate. Norman Roy Clevlen was appointed executor of will.

Joseph Allen Engram, deceased: Appointment of appraiser.

Garry E. Champion was appointed appraiser to fix clear market value of the estate.

Agnes J. Glastetter, deceased: Appointment of appraiser.

Joe Perry Rice III was appointed appraiser to fix clear market value of the estate.

Allen Wagoner, deceased: Appointment of administratrix.

Zelma Wagoner was appointed by the court as administratrix of the estate.

Harry C. Blanton, also known as H. C. Blanton, deceased: Order authorizing sale of American Telephone and Telegraph Co. stock warrants.

The court authorized Henry Joseph Cullen Blanton and Patrick Tlapek, co-executors, to sell 100 American Telephone and Telegraph Co. stock warrants included in the estate at such time as they deem advisable on the New York Stock Exchange for cash at the most advantageous terms possible.

The court ordered a hearing on Jan. 31, 1975 in the matter of selling lots 4, 5 and 6 in block 33 in Morley.

Julie Lee Thompson, deceased: Inventory filed and recorded.

Dorothy Butler, administratrix, presented her inventory and appraisement in the estate, which was examined, approved and ordered filed and recorded.

Winnie W. Ozee, deceased—Appointment of appraiser.

Joe Perry Rice III was appointed appraiser to fix clear market value of the estate.

Gheodore A. Goetz Sr., deceased: Appointment of administrator.

World News

By The Associated Press

LONDON (AP) — Motorcycle showman Evel Knievel plans a tour of Britain this spring that will start with an appearance at Wembley Stadium here May 26, his agents say. It will be the daredevil's first appearance outside North America.

Last summer, Knievel succeeded in attracting wide attention for an attempt to jump across the Snake River Canyon in Idaho on a rocket-powered device. The jump, however, failed.

Segovia already has two sons — Andres, 53, by a previous marriage, and Carlos, 4.

Segovia, who lives in Madrid, is here for a concert. He says his 37-year-old wife, Emilia, plans to join him next month.

Segovia calls his younger son "the joy of my life." From his wife, he says he is "absorbing youth."

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A spokesman for Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. says Haig has sent the U.S. Treasury a $91 check to compensate the government for transporting Haig's liquor when he moved from Washington last October to become supreme allied commander in Europe.

The spokesman said the liquor was incorrectly sent as household goods without Haig's knowledge. Some vodka and wine were reported to have been crated under the label "glassware."

Last week, a spokesman for Haig said the former White House chief of staff would reimburse the government $46.92 in another irregularity — a special ride from Frankfurt to Stuttgart which Haig's mongrel dog Duncan got in an Army staff car.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government export restrictions on wheat and soybean sales are being relaxed following cancellation of large purchases of U.S. wheat by the Soviet Union and mainland China. Beginning today exporters will be allowed to sell up to 100,000 tons of wheat and soybeans to foreign buyers without prior approval from the Agriculture Department. Since October the limit has been 50,000 tons.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special government study group is investigating atomic power plant safety, a concern highlighted by a Nuclear Regulatory Commission order shutting down 23 plants to check for flaws in a key emergency system. The commission has given the reactor operators 20 days to comply after cracks were found in a 10-inch-diameter pipe at a reactor in Morris, Ill. The order is the second such government move in the last five months.

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Dean III, out of his prison denims for less than a month, begins a Watergate lecture tour Sunday which will earn him at least $175,000 over the next nine weeks. Unlike a similar campus tour planned by former White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, Dean's plans so far have stirred little complaint from those who believe no one should profit from Watergate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James B. Allen, the leading practitioner of the Senate filibuster, is threatening to talk to death a rule change that would weaken his favorite legislative tactic. A proposal by Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and James B. Pearson, R-Kan., would allow a filibuster to be stopped by a three-fifths majority of those voting instead of the present two-thirds. The rule change is expected to come to the Senate floor soon.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Al Ullman is urging his House Ways and Means Committee to approve a tax-cut bill by next week as President Ford indicates some flexibility in dealing with Congress on tax reductions to boost the slumping economy. But Ullman says his meeting Wednesday with Ford failed to break the impasse on Ford's oil import tax program. The tariff hike, opposed by most congressional Democrats, goes into effect Saturday.

AP National Roundup

DETROIT (AP) — Some financial analysts say the nation's slumping auto industry, traditionally among the most profitable in the world, may be operating in the red for the first time. Investment counselors for several large banks and brokerage houses predict that together the four major auto companies probably will lose money in the first quarter of 1975. A half-dozen analysts surveyed by The Associated Press said they could not recall the industry as a whole reporting net losses in a quarter before, and certainly never in a nonstrike period.

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Sugar warehouses across the nation are full and sales have been so slow some refineries have been forced to shut down. It is a sharp comedown for sugar, which rose 400 per cent in price last year to join oil as a symbol of shortage and inflation. Raw sugar has fallen $24 since it topped out at $64.50 per 100 pounds last Nov. 20. The world's largest refinery, the C&H plant in San Francisco, called a five-day layoff.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Elvis Presley, who reportedly is concerned about a weight problem, has been hospitalized for what is described as several days of tests. Maurice Elliott, vice president of Memphis Baptist Hospital, said details on tests or treatments planned for Presley were not known.

What's the law?

The case of the light-fingered lady

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Because pickpockets had been working the Gran Hotel like they owned it, Detective Flynn was assigned to keep an eye on the hotel. Rather than go chasing around looking for pickpockets, however, the cagy detective decided it was simpler to let them find him.

Consequently, he sprawled out on a couch in the hotel lobby, made believe he was asleep and waited patiently for an unsuspecting felon to appear.

And as Detective Flynn had figured, it didn't take long. Light-fingered Fanny soon sashayed up to the couch, patted him gently on the head to make sure he was asleep and was promptly arrested on charges of larceny when she tenderly withdrew his wallet from an inside pocket.

"She took it," testified Flynn in court, "with the ease that Louis took Schmeling in their second fight."

"Of course I did," admitted Fanny, "but only because he let me do it. And because he let me do it, I can't be convicted. Obviously, when you're premitted to take something, you're not stealing."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict the light-fingered Fanny of stealing Detective Flynn's wallet?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that as a general porposition, there can be no larceny when property is taken with the owner's consent. But, added the judge, permitting a person to complete a larceny so that he can be arrested for the crime does not constitute consent to the theft.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Jan. 30, the 30th day of 1975. There are 335 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1933, Adolf Hitler became Chancellor of Germany.

On this date — In 1649, King Charles I of England was beheaded.

In 1835, a would-be assassin shot twice at President Andrew Jackson at the Capitol Building in Washington, but missed.

In 1847, the California town of Yerba Buena was renamed San Francisco.

In 1882, Franklin Roosevelt was born at Hyde Park, N.Y.

Ten years ago: Sir Winston Churchill was buried after a state funeral in London in which Britain and the world paid homage to the leader.

Five years ago: Two students were killed and more than 200 wounded as demonstrators stormed the presidential palace in the Philippine capital of Manila.

One year ago: President Nixon vowed not to resign and called for a speedy end to all Watergate investigations, saying "one year of Watergate is enough."

Today's birthdays: Actress Vanessa Redgravve is 38. Actor John Ireland is 60. Writer Barbara Tuchman is 63.

Thought for today: Shallow men believe in luck. — Ralph Waldo Emerson, American writer, 1803-1882

Concert band- Members of the U.S. Army Field Band, organized in 1946, have marched in Presidential Inaugural parades, escorted the President on special occasions and performed for visiting heads-of-state. Through its concert tours and frequent radio and television appearances, the concert band has entertained audiences all over the world.

Where else could you find such a large variety of merchandise for sale than in the Classified section of your newspaper? Items from cameras to new homes . . . from pets to automobiles . . . from bicycles to antiques. It is truly the marketplace of millions across the nation. But the real advantage to you, the buyer, is its freshness! The inventory in this marketplace is constantly changing . . . from day to day. When you're in the market to buy something . . . anything . . . you should turn first to the Want Ads. And even if by chance you don't find the item you're seeking, then you can place a "Wanted" ad and most likely find another reader who can satisfy your want! Where else could you find such a large variety of merchandise for sale than in the Classified section of your newspaper? Items from cameras to new homes . . . from pets to automobiles . . . from bicycles to antiques. It is truly the marketplace of millions across the nation. But the real advantage to you, the buyer, is its freshness! The inventory in this marketplace is constantly changing . . . from day to day. When you're in the market to buy something . . . anything . . . you should turn first to the Want Ads. And even if by chance you don't find the item you're seeking, then you can place a "Wanted" ad and most likely find another reader who can satisfy your want! And it's so easy to place your ad . . . just call

Park courts is poor, the group contends. The playing surface is rough and the lines are not in good condition.

The nets are made of chain link fencing and can cause injury if a player should fall against the upright pieces of wire on the top of the net. Mrs. Bowman says some of her 4-H club members who use the courts have been hurt by the nets.

The park board is aware of the problem, but lacks the funds to improve the tennis court situation, according to Charles Church, city manager.

The park board receives only $42,000 annually in operating revenue from its tax base. With this money it must maintain 23 acres of city park land.

This year the city dipped into the general revenue fund and loaned the park board $12,000. Next year the city will have to find an estimated $50,000 for the board so it can maintain the new recreational complex.

In addition, vandalism costs the park board $5,000 to $7,000 annually, Church said.

The tennis court situation exists, not because the park board or the city doesn't want to do anything, but because the city has to allocate its limited money to other areas, Church said.

Church said he didn't want "to sound like I have a one track mind," but he said, the only way the city can provide more tennis courts is with a sales tax.

Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur.

The president of Missouri ERA Coalition, Ellen S. Walters of Webster Groves, said her group "has gotten further than before."

Asked about potential opposition in the Senate, the 57-year-old Mrs. Walters said, "We're working on the Senate. We have various people talking to different senators."

Manford said debate in the Senate "will bring out the real reasons why there is such a concerted effort by organized groups and individuals to seek its enactment."

He said committee testimony indicates that the changes that would be fostered by implementation of the manedment are under way in both the state and federal government.

Leaders of both political parties have come out in favor of ERA.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond has voiced support for the amendment, as well as Senate President Pro Tem William Cason, D-Clinton, a candidate for the party's gubernatorial nomination.

Five more states must ratify the amendment before it can become part of the U. S. Constitution. Thirty-three states have already approved it. It has until 1979 to be ratified.

Floor debate on both resolutions could not begin before next week, as several measures precede them in both chambers.

The resolutions approved by the Senate and House committees are identical, but passage of each in the respective houses would not mean Missouri's ratification of ERA. Both chambers must approve the same specific copy of the resolution. It would not need the governor's signature.

SeMo president to visit Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Dr. Robert E. Leestamper, president-elect of Southeast Missouri State University, will be in Cape Girardeau for at least a three-day period beginning March 15 to meet with the Faculty Senate, possibly the Student Senate and to make a 90-minute television appearance.

Campus officials said Dr. Leestamper has been in contact with Dr. Mark F. Scully, university president, since last fall and has also had correspondence with officers of the Faculty Senate.

The television appearance will e on KFVS-TV, Channel 12, on the afternoon of March 15. Dr. Leestamper is expected to arrive here about noon.

The occasion will be the fourth in an annual series of humanities programs on the campus supported through the Missouri State Committee for the Humanities on a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities in Washington.

Originally, the event had been scheduled for Rose Theater, but was rescheduled when television time was offered. The exact time of the program has not been set.

The purpose will be to explore the role of courses of study at the university in the humanities as they affect critical choices in education in Southeast Missouri.

Participating with Dr. Leestamper on a panel will be Dr. Fred B. Goodwin, chairman of the Division of Language and Literature; Dr. David A. Strand, dean of the university, and Charles Sharp, assistant professor of history.

Donald T. McNeely, program director of KFVS-TV, who will moderate the program, has a bachelor's and master's degree in the humanities. After the panelists' presentation the general public, who will be asked to join in the studio program, will be invited to ask questions and offer comments.

Dr. Bill Stacy, project director for the university's humanities program, said discussions between Dr. Scully and Dr. Leestamper on the latter's appearance had been under way since November and the program was agreed to in December.

He said Dr. Scully had suggested that there be a meeting of the Faculty Senate on March 17, at which he would introduce his successor. Dr. Leestamper was agreeable and his meeting with the faculty was set. This will be held in Rose Theater, Dr. Stacy said.

He added that the Faculty Senate has been sending Dr. Leestamper minutes of its meetings through the current academic year to keep him informed of faculty decisions.

Students, upon learning the president-elect will be here, have extended him an invitation to appear on Monday night at an open meeting of the Student Senate.

It is not known, however, whether Dr. Leestamper plans to remain here after the Faculty Senate meeting or plans to return to Worcester, Mass., where he is president of Worcester State College.

Commenting on the humanities program, Dr. Scully said, "The university feels very keenly its responsibility to serve the educational needs of the area. This discussion of what to teach and the implications of humanities instruction will give us all a chance to think about our schools.

"In accepting my invitation to participate, Dr. Leestamper will give the faculty and friends throughout the district a chance to meet him and get to know his views on education."

Among points panelists expect to explore on the humanities program are these: Role of the humanities in southeast Missouri education, role of humanities vs. move toward increasing vocational-technical-career oriented education, value teaching in the schools, how the humanities fit into elementary, secondary and higher education curricula, how should a school board or a school administrator balance educational offerings, values and ehtics, and how the study of the humanities can increase the potential of education and democracy.

Area employment totals at near normal level

MALDEN — Unemployment in the Malden and neighboring area is beginning to rise slowly, but, not to the alarming point. A survey of large industrial employers in the Malden-Bernie-Parma- Gideon area on Tuesday of this week revealed that most plants are operating at near normal or are down slightly due to the winter season.

Some firms have announced layoffs or cutbacks, but others say the situation is near normal or even above normal.

Federal - Mogul Corp. the largest employer in the Malden area, announced additional cutbacks of personnel last week, but refused to say how many employes have been laid off.

Gary Billings, personnel manager for the company, said that the cutback can be attributed to the national lag in automobile sales.The company's main product is pistons for automobiles.

Billings declined comment on the number of persons employed at the plant or how many were laid off. However, he said the company hopes that this will be the leveling-off stage and that further cutbacks will not be necessary.

Unconfirmed reports are that possibly as many as 25 per cent of those employed will be laid off — at least temporarily. How many people this involves is not certain, since employment at the F-M plant varies throughout the year from 500 to more than 700.

Meanwhile, a strike at Bee Cee Manufacturing Co. is now in its seventh week.Bee Cee, which manufactures aluminum doors and windows, employs abut 116 people.

Employment at the H.W. Gossard Co. plant in Malden is down, but picking up. Russell Hoehn, plant manager, said that they are now working about two-thirds of their normal amount of people and no overtime. Gossard normally employes in excess of 300 people, predominantly women, at two plants. The firm manufactures women's gowns and robes.

Gerald Kidd, manager of Missouri Continental Homes, said the situation isn't as good as he would like, but that is about normal for this time of the year. He said that the firm is operating on a winter schedule and employs about 75 people. Kidd said this is about normal for his company during the winter months.

Meanwhile, employment at the Brown Shoe Co. plant in Bernie is up. V. J. Featherston, plant manager, said the current situation is good, in fact, above average for this time of year. He said that the plant currently has 507 people on the payroll.

Marvin Link, manager of the Inland Shoe Co. plant in Parma, expressed optimism about employment at his plant. He said that up until about 10 days ago, the factory was working at full strength, with 225 on the payroll, but is currently in a changeover from producing spring styles to fall styles and has had some temporary layoffs. However, he said that the plant expects to be back into full production by mid-February.

Employment at the Gideon-Anderson Lumber Co. box plant in Gideon is slightly above normal for this time of the year. John Gifford of Gideon-Anderson said the present situation is satisfactory, but he doesn't know about the future. He declined to say how many people are employed at the plant.

Many people from the area are employed at the Noranda Aluminum Inc. plant near Marston, where there have been some layoffs and cutbacks. The number of persons involved has not been announced.

The Emerson Electric Co. plant in Kennett has announced some cutbacks which also affects wage earners in the area.

Overall, industrial employers are operating on an as usual basis as much as possible with a wait and see attitude.

Bloomfield man to be nominated for civic award

BLOOMFIELD — Mayor J. C. Newcomer and members of the board of aldermen voted to submit the name of Glenn F. Aslin as recipient of a civic leadership award to be presented at the ninth annual meeting of the Missouri Municipal League to be held at Sikeston Feb. 13.

Mayor Newcomer stated "For many years, Glenn Aslin has quietly and efficiently done much of the thank you work in our community, much of which has been publicly unnoticed and I think the time is past, overdue, for us to recognize that service."

Presently serving as the Bloomfield postmaster, Aslin has served for many years as treasurer of the local Masonic lodge and the First Baptist Church, chairman of the local housing authority, and member of the board of directors and secretary treasurer of Crowley's Ridge Recreational Center.

On numerous occasions he has taken the responsibility of leadership in various charity fund drives conducted in the Bloomfield area. While serving in the Army and later in the Missouri National Guard he distinguished himself by obtaining the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Cotton picker catches fire

NEW MADRID — The fire department was called at 7:35 p.m. Wednesday to extinguish a fire in a cotton picker owned by John Sherman. Heavy damage was reported to the picker, which caught fire in a field along Highway 61 near the Interstate 55 Howardville interchange. The cause of the fire was not reported.

At 4:58 p.m. Wednesday, the fire department answered a call to the North Main Street school where a grass fire had ignited. No damage was reported.

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has added a two-day visit to Syria to his Middle East trip, Tass announced today. The Soviet news agency said Gromyko would visit Damascus Saturday and Sunday. It announced previously that he would arrive in Cairo on Monday to continue consultations with the Egyptian leaders. Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported that after his talks in Cairo, Gromyko would visit Iraq.

New home sought for star boarder at Hayti Zoo

HAYTI-The City of Hayti is looking for a home for Butch, a hefty lion who eats about $300 worth of beef kidneys a month and requires a lot of gas heat in his cage in the city park.

Mayor Fred Chaffin said the animal, which is regarded fondly by the Pemiscot County towns's population, is about 11 years old now and eats considerably more than when he was first obtained by two interested citizens over a decade ago as a lion cub.

Butch lives at the Hayti Zoo and is its star resident, in addition to a bear named Suzie, two or three peacocks, three or four deer, a raccoon and a monkey.

Last week, the Hayti Park board, headed by Pearl Wimberly, wrote a letter to the council, urging the city to begin efforts to find a new home for Butch, in light of the rising costs of food and fuel which he requires.

Shortly after the decision was reached to begin looking for a new address, a St. Louis woman-a Mrs. Brenda Hayes-reported to the Humane Society in St. Louis that she had just returned from a visit to the Hayti Zoo and complained that the animals were kept in small, dirty cages and were left unattended.

She specifically complained about an injured deer which she saw was unable to stand up. She said four hours after she made her complaint, a man went to the zoo, inspected it, and destroyed the animal.

Mayor Chaffin confirmed the animal had been destroyed but said there was no neglect involved, "if anything, the animal was allowed to live longer than he should, in the hopes he would recover." Chaffin said the deer had been injured in a fight with another deer earlier.

The mayor said there was no mistreatment of animals at the park, as the woman implied, "and we invite anyone to come and see for themselves."

Mayor Chaffin said he had suspicions that the complaint and subsequent investigation by the Humane Society may be connected with the city's plans to get rid of Butch in the future, which in all likelihood would result in the end of the zoo. "Some people probably don't want to see Butch go," the mayor said, "although I've personally not heard any complaints about the decision. Still, it's costing us a lot to keep it up and the park board feels the money could be better used elsewhere in the park."

He said that up until about 10 days ago, the factory was working at full strength, with 225 on the payroll, but is currently in a changeover from producing spring styles to fall styles and has had some temporary layoffs. However, he said that the plant expects to be back into full production by mid-February.

Employment at the Gideon-Anderson Lumber Co. box plant in Gideon is slightly above normal for this time of the year. John Gifford of Gideon-Anderson said the present situation is satisfactory, but he doesn't know about the future. He declined to say how many people are employed at the plant.

Many people from the area are employed at the Noranda Aluminum Inc. plant near Marston, where there have been some layoffs and cutbacks. The number of persons involved has not been announced.

The Emerson Electric Co. plant in Kennett has announced some cutbacks which also affects wage earners in the area.

Overall, industrial employers are operating on an as usual basis as much as possible with a wait and see attitude.

One-man Sub

The "Turtle" was a one-man submarine, the first to be put into military use, designed and built in America in 1775 for use against British warships during the Revolutionary War. It measured 7½ feet long by 6 feet wide.

Bloomfield man to be nominated for civic award

BLOOMFIELD — Mayor J. C. Newcomer and members of the board of aldermen voted to submit the name of Glenn F. Aslin as recipient of a civic leadership award to be presented at the ninth annual meeting of the Missouri Municipal League to be held at Sikeston Feb. 13.

Mayor Newcomer stated "For many years, Glenn Aslin has quietly and efficiently done much of the thank you work in our community, much of which has been publicly unnoticed and I think the time is past, overdue, for us to recognize that service."

Presently serving as the Bloomfield postmaster, Aslin has served for many years as treasurer of the local Masonic lodge and the First Baptist Church, chairman of the local housing authority, and member of the board of directors and secretary treasurer of Crowley's Ridge Recreational Center.

On numerous occasions he has taken the responsibility of leadership in various charity fund drives conducted in the Bloomfield area. While serving in the Army and later in the Missouri National Guard he distinguished himself by obtaining the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Cotton picker catches fire

NEW MADRID — The fire department was called at 7:55 p.m. Wednesday to extinguish a fire in a cotton picker owned by John Sherman. Heavy damage was reported to the picker, which caught fire in a field along Highway 61 near the Interstate 55 Howardville interchange. The cause of the fire was not reported.

At 4:58 p.m. Wednesday, the fire department answered a call to the North Main Street school where a grass fire had ignited. No damage was reported.

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has added a two-day visit to Syria to his Middle East trip, Tass announced today. The Soviet news agency said Gromyko would visit Damascus Saturday and Sunday. It announced previously that he would arrive in Cairo on Monday to continue consultations with the Egyptian leaders. Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported that after his talks in Cairo, Gromyko would visit Iraq.

HAYTI-The City of Hayti is looking for a home for Butch, a hefty lion who eats about $300 worth of beef kidneys a month and requires a lot of gas heat in his cage in the city park.

Mayor Fred Chaffin said the animal, which is regarded fondly by the Pemiscot County towns's population, is about 11 years old now and eats considerably more than when he was first obtained by two interested citizens over a decade ago as a lion cub.

Butch lives at the Hayti Zoo and is its star resident, in addition to a bear named Suzie, two or three peacocks, three or four deer, a raccoon and a monkey.

Last week, the Hayti Park board, headed by Pearl Wimberly, wrote a letter to the council, urging the city to begin efforts to find a new home for Butch, in light of the rising costs of food and fuel which he requires.

Shortly after the decision was reached to begin looking for a new address, a St. Louis woman-a Mrs. Brenda Hayes-reported to the Humane Society in St. Louis that she had just returned from a visit to the Hayti Zoo and complained that the animals were kept in small, dirty cages and were left unattended.

She specifically complained about an injured deer which she saw was unable to stand up. She said four hours after she made her complaint, a man went to the zoo, inspected it, and destroyed the animal.

Mayor Chaffin confirmed the animal had been destroyed but said there was no neglect involved, "if anything, the animal was allowed to live longer than he should, in the hopes he would recover." Chaffin said the deer had been injured in a fight with another deer earlier.

The mayor said there was no mistreatment of animals at the park, as the woman implied, "and we invite anyone to come and see for themselves."

Mayor Chaffin said he had suspicions that the complaint and subsequent investigation by the Humane Society may be connected with the city's plans to get rid of Butch in the future, which in all likelihood would result in the end of the zoo. "Some people probably don't want to see Butch go," the mayor said, "although I've personally not heard any complaints about the decision. Still, it's costing us a lot to keep it up and the park board feels the money could be better used elsewhere in the park."
